BORROWING AT THE BANK to Extend Your Markets

Meat Packing..Fish Canning..Fruit Canning..Cheese Making
—and many other lines of business—are finding larger markets abroad, due to tariff agreements permitting freer international trade.

Canadian commodities of wide variety are being exported, with profit to agricultural, manufacturing and commercial business.

To extend your business in foreign markets, financing may be necessary.

If you need to borrow for such a constructive purpose, any branch manager of the Bank of Montreal will be glad to consult with you regarding loans.

INTRODUCTION

THE primary object of the publishers of the Canadian Trade Index is to provide buyers and sellers at home and abroad with an authoritative directory of the products manufactured in Canada with the names of the firms making them. It includes a complete list of all Canadian manufacturers having more than a local distribution for their products.

When first published in 1900, the Canadian Trade Index included only members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Incorporated. Since that time, as a result of constructive suggestions from several Ministers of the Crown and members of the Association, the book has been enlarged to meet conditions in both domestic and overseas markets.

Many years ago it was made a national publication, including all manufacturers in Canada. To assist buyers in other countries, overseas representatives of Canadian manufacturers were listed and French and Spanish Sections added. Later, as a result of an arrangement with the Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa, the Index was enlarged to include a Special Export Section and a list of producers, shippers and exporters of agricultural produce and allied lines.

Owing to the detailed classification and the numerous advertisements, prospective purchasers are generally in a position to get in direct contact with manufacturers of the goods desired, but where information regarding specialized lines is required the gratuitous service of the Commercial Intelligence Department of the Association is offered. Representatives of overseas firms visiting Canada are also invited to call at the Head Office of the Association where they will be given every possible attention.

The Index is kept up to date by an annual revision, and the past year has been spent in checking and revising names, addresses and classifications. Each manufacturer is sent a revising form on which any changes in firm names or products are reported. Additional information is received from Government departments, mercantile reports, and our ten offices across Canada. Classifications are generally established by consultation with manufacturers and experts in various industries.

The publishers wish to thank all organizations, government departments, and the manufacturers who have so kindly aided by furnishing the information on which the book is based.

Collections, Market Opportunities, Trade Connections

MANUFACTURERS engaged in domestic and foreign trade are constantly faced with problems of exchange, collections, the transfer of funds, and foreign credits. Reliable information is sometimes required on market opportunities both at home and abroad. Frequently assistance is needed in arranging suitable trade connections.

Helpful co-operation in such matters is immediately forthcoming through branches of this bank in Canada, Great Britain, France, the United States, the West Indies, Central and South America. Your enquiries are invited. Consult your local branch, or write Business Development Department, Head Office, Montreal.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association Incorporated

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association was incorporated by Act of Parliament in 1902.

OBJECTS

The objects of the Association are to promote Canadian industries and to further the interests of Canadian manufacturers and exporters, and to render such services and assistance to the members of the Association, and to manufacturers and exporters generally, as the Association shall deem advisable from time to time.

SERVICES

The following services can be rendered by the Department specified:

Transportation Department—Adjustment of rates, freight, passenger, express, telegraph and telephone; claims, loss, damage, overcharge; classifications, freight and express; rules and regulations governing freight, express and baggage; charges, local switching, inter-switching and cartage; interpretation of tariffs, freight, express and passenger; classifications, freight and express; Railway Act, information on: S.S. services, rates, freight, passenger, express, telephone and telegraph, freight tariffs, siding agreements and any other transportation question.

Tariff Department—Interpretation of Canadian Customs Tariff; information in regard to tariffs of all civilized countries; questions of value for duty; assistance in Customs drawback claims and refunds; advice in regard to invoices; preparation of cases for the Tariff Board; assistance in the matter of needed tariff changes.

Insurance Department—Standing of Companies; examinations of policies; policy wordings; advice re sprinkler equipment; insurance rates; advice on building construction; inspection service.

Legal Department—Advice on Company Law; Commercial Laws of Canada; information re Workmen's Compensation; general information on legal matters.

Commercial Intelligence Department—Information re articles made in Canada; names of manufacturers of articles; information re agencies and export connections; sources of supplies of raw materials; Government regulations re manufacturers; translations of foreign correspondence; classified lists of manufacturers; commercial statistics and trade information.

The Trade Sections Department supplies a secretarial and organizing service to any group of manufacturers who may desire to organize along lines of production and for the purpose of dealing with common problems incidental to any trade.

Industrial Relations Department—The Association makes a special study of the industrial relations between employers and employees.

The above are only samples of the services which can be rendered by this Association to its members. All subjects which are of interest to manufacturers are studied, and the Association is prepared to render advice concerning them. The chief purpose of the Association is to develop and extend industrial activities in Canada and promote export trade.

Publishing Department—The following publications are supplied to all members of the Association:

(a) "Industrial Canada" the official organ of the Association, which contains information compiled from the various Departments, and also commercial news of a general character.

(b) The Canadian Trade Index—This book contains a list of all the manufacturers in Canada, with the Goods which they make. It is distributed abroad through Government Trade Commissioners, Export Organizations and other agencies.

FEES

The Association is maintained by the fees paid by members. The fee in each case is determined by the number of employees. For further information please communicate with the Head Office—

PEDLAR'S METAL-BUILT PRODUCTS

FOR THE BUILDER —

ROAD CONTRACTOR —

FARMER

CANADA'S most complete line of Metal-Built Products — more than 75 years of engineering and manufacturing experience — factories and sales offices from coast-to-coast — connections in Empire countries overseas. On such points as these Pedlar leadership is based.

We supply builders with fireproofing building materials; road authorities and municipalities with culverts and re-inforcing materials and to the farmer we sell metal roofing for his buildings, modern stable equipment for his barn and metal curbing for his well.

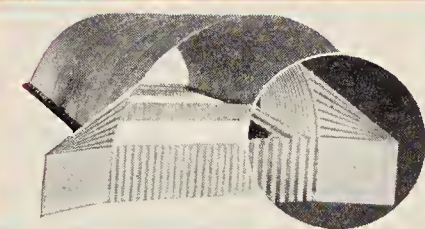

All the Pedlar line is fully described in our catalogues, copies of which, together with prices, will be mailed on application.

Conveyer Systems

Conveying has become a science, for no piece of equipment can be taken down from "off the shelf" with the assurance that it will fit any particular job. For that reason, Mathews has specialized in the design and construction of complete systems—most of them consisting of varied types of conveyers—to meet the handling requirements of the plants in which they are installed.

Some of the units that go to make up a complete system are briefly described here. More detailed descriptions and many special units are shown in the Mathews Catalog which will be sent on request.

Gravity Roller Conveyers

Rollers, bearings, frame rails and supports for Mathews Gravity Roller Conveyer are built in a wide variety of sizes and types for loads ranging from 20 to 8000 lbs. per roller.

Some are of special construction for use where moisture proof, acid-resistant or high temperature equipment is required.

Belt Conveyers

Mathews belt conveyers are made level, inclined, declined or in combinations, in lengths and widths to suit specific requirements, using stitched canvas, solid woven, rubber covered, rubber, duck, steel mat and wire mesh belts. Ball bearing rollers, wooden sliderboard or sheet metal is generally used as a means for supporting the load to be conveyed.

Trolley Conveyers

Trolley wheels of pressed steel and cast iron; chains of malleable iron and drop forged steel; numerous supports, brackets and hooks made Mathews Trolley Conveyers adaptable to almost any overhead conveying problem.

Elevating Conveyers

For semi and automatic lifting and lowering of materials, Mathews offers a number of chain elevators that are now being used in many different industries. These are described in detail in the Mathews Catalog.

Chain Conveyers

Both malleable and steel chains are used in Mathews Chain Conveyers, which have a distinct field of application and are adaptable for use where resistance to high temperature, water, abrasion and the ability to convey goods on steep inclines is required. The Pallet Conveyer, with its moving bed of metal or wood pallets, has the widest usage of the conveyers in this group.

Sheet Metal Spiral Chutes

Sheet metal of various gauges, according to the purpose to which the equipment is to be put, is used in Mathews Spiral Chutes. These chutes are built to fit the particular plants where installation is to be made. They are used for fire escapes as well as material handling.

ALGOMA QUALITY MEETS WORLD STANDARDS

Steel produced by the "Men of Algoma" is qualified by 36 years of use in Canadian industry to meet world standards. Their product is made to the specifications of Canadian engineers and metallurgists whose limits and tolerances are as fine as any in the world. Algoma is the foremost Canadian producer of railroad, structural and alloy steels. Algoma supplies a wide range of shapes and sections, in 130 grades of carbon and alloy steels to domestic and export markets, for automobiles, buildings, bridges, agricultural implements, mining equipment, docks and drainage structures, household products, machinery, rails and railroad equipment, public utilities and for other products and uses.

ALLOY STEELS—

Pioneers in Canada of Alloy Steels in hot rolled sections, bars and billets. Specially suited to conditions demanding high tensile strength and shock resistance combined with reduced weight. Quality proven in service in automobiles, locomotives, mine car axles, springs, etc. Chromium, Nickel, Vanadium, Molybdenum, Manganese, Silicon, singly or in combination, can be supplied to S.A.E. or customers' specifications.

BILLETS—BLOOMS—SLABS—

Made of Algoma high-quality Steel for rerolling and forging. Supplied in Carbon and Alloy grades. BILLETS AND BLOOMS in all squares from $3\frac{1}{4}'' \times 3\frac{1}{4}''$ to $18'' \times 18''$ inclusive. SLABS from $4''$ to $20''$ wide—any thickness $2''$ and over.

GRINDING RODS—

Special high carbon grinding rods used by the mining industry throughout Canada. Complete range of sizes.

PIG IRON—

Algoma Machine Cast Easy-Melt "PIGLET" in all grades of FOUNDRY, MALLEABLE, BASIC IRON.

RAILS—Standard and Mine—

12 to 130 lbs. per yard
Canadian, British and American Standard Sections

MINE RAILS
Standard A.S.C.E. Sections

12-lb. per yard	25-lb. per yard	40-lb. per yard
16-lb. per yard	30-lb. per yard	45-lb. per yard
20-lb. per yard	35-lb. per yard

RAIL FASTENINGS

Tie Plates, Angle Splice Bars and Fish Plates.

Angle Bars and 100% Joints, fitting all standard Rail sections to 130 lbs. per yard.

Tieplates: "Lundie", "Sellers Anchor Bottom" and "Compression Bottom" designs, fitting all standard Rail sections.

REINFORCING BARS—

Of New Billet Open Hearth Steel. Round, square and twisted. Give strength and permanence to concrete construction.

SPRING STEELS—

Round, square, octagon and flat carbon or alloy bars for helical or elliptical springs.

STEEL BARS—

ALGOMA STEEL Supplies a Wide Range of

FLATS to	12"
ROUNDS to	$4\frac{7}{8}''$
SQUARES to	3"
OCTAGONS	$1\frac{3}{16}''$

Commercial or forging quality in carbon and alloy steels.

STEEL SHEET PILING—

Sole Canadian Makers of STEEL SHEET PILING. Supplied in open hearth steel of structural grade or stronger. Alloyed with copper or chromium where necessary to resist corrosion. Three distinct types to suit heavy, intermediate or light construction.

STRUCTURAL STEEL SHAPES—

The widest range of structural sections produced in Canada. Standard I-Beams and Channels to $15''$ in depth of web, $6'' \times 6''$ H-Beams and $8'' \times 6\frac{1}{2}''$ modified H sections. All sections available in Carbon or Alloy Steel. Range of sizes and sections as follows:

	MAXIMUM		MINIMUM
	SIZE	LBS. PER FT.	SIZE	LBS. PER FT.

De Laval Oil Purifiers

protect machinery . . . conserve oil . . . improve products

De Laval Oil Purifiers remove by centrifugal force from oil, water and solid impurities which cause the oil to lose its lubricating, insulating or other desired properties. This purification with a De Laval enables the same oil to be used indefinitely—and indefinitely maintained in better condition.

De Laval Centrifugals are available for a wide variety of services including clarification of enamels, varnishes and similar products. In fact wherever impurities are to be removed from a liquid, removal can be more effectively and more economically accomplished with a De Laval.

There are styles and sizes to meet every need. "Uni-Matic", pictured at the left, is a complete oil purification plant, including pumps, heaters, gauges, etc. Write for details.

Speed Reducers

Used wherever High Speed Power is applied to Low Speed Use

Worm gear and helical gear units, in single and multiple reduction, are made in a wide range of sizes. Send for catalogue on either of these types, listing standard sizes, with power capacities and detail specifications. These are high grade, heavy duty gear drives, designed and rated for 24-hour continuous service. Ratios are available up to six thousand to one in simple, efficient, self-contained units.

Integral motorized speed reducers and increasers, built as one self-contained unit, are made in a full range of sizes, in both worm gear and helical gear forms, in single and multiple reduction, to give almost any desired final speed. This construction offers many advantages in freedom of arrangement.

During 1937 we have extended our line of Double Reduction Worm units to quite large sizes. These have ratios ranging from about 60 up to 6000 to one. A new catalogue covers this line in detail.

The Planetary type of speed reducer with shafts in line is now made for coupled connection, as shown, as well as in the original motorized form. A new catalogue has been issued on each of these lines.

The Compensating Joint

Silent Chain Drives

The Hamilton-Ramsey silent chain (made in Canada) will operate at higher speeds and run smoother and with less wear than any competing chain because of the compensating rolling cam action in the patented Ramsey joint. 24-hour delivery, in $\frac{3}{8}$ " to $1\frac{1}{2}$ " pitch.

ROLDWELD Steel Spur Gears

This new electric-welded steel gear has a .45% C. forging-quality rim. It is long wearing and practically unbreakable. The cost is less than a steel casting, the strength is greater, and delivery can be made in a quarter of the time. See photo above.

Flexible Couplings

A full line of standard flexible couplings for both high speed and slow speed, the former illustrated here, are carried in stock. Larger sizes to order. We also stock small power flexible couplings down to fractional h.p. ratings. Send for coupling catalogue.

Ship Freight via CANADIAN PACIFIC

to EUROPE

To Liverpool and London every week; to Southampton, Antwerp and Hamburg, every fortnight . . . from Montreal and Quebec (Summer) . . . West Saint John, N.B., and Halifax (Winter). Westbound from Havre. Passenger cargo steamers to Liverpool and Southampton. Cargo liners (sea speed 15 knots) to London, Antwerp, Hamburg. All steamers ventilated between decks. Unexcelled North Atlantic service for bulk, refrigerated and package freight.

to CANADA and UNITED STATES

For speed and dependability, use Canadian Pacific trans-continental and local freight services throughout Canada and to the United States. Take advantage of the economical freight facilities on Canadian Pacific coastal and inland steamships.

to the ORIENT

The "White Empress" fleet provides regular freight service to Honolulu, Yokohama, Kobe, Nagasaki, Shanghai, Hong Kong and Manila on the fastest ships on the Pacific. Sailings fortnightly from Vancouver and Victoria.

to NEW ZEALAND and AUSTRALIA

Freight for Honolulu, Fiji, Auckland, N.Z., Wellington, N.Z., Lyttleton, N.Z., Dunedin, N.Z., Melbourne and Sydney, Australia, by Canadian Pacific in association with the Canadian Australasian Line. Sailings from Vancouver and Victoria.

Refrigerator service—Brine and Cool Air—is provided on all Canadian Pacific and Canadian Australasian ocean liners.

Through bills of lading issued to all parts of the world in connection with own or other steamship lines. Full information from your nearest Canadian Pacific agency—offices throughout the world—or:

Serving Canada

TEMPERATURE INSTRUMENTS

FOR TWENTY-FOUR YEARS

- To serve the Canadian market with temperature indication, recording and controlling equipment, Taylor Instrument Companies of Canada Limited have built up a highly efficient manufacturing organization housed in an up-to-date plant. Throughout this organization the high standards of accuracy for which the name TAYLOR is famous, are rigidly maintained. You are invited to write, without obligation, for catalogues covering temperature instruments needed in your industry and to refer temperature problems to our engineers.

Above is the new Taylor "Fulscope" Recording Regulator, for accurate, efficient, automatic control of temperatures.

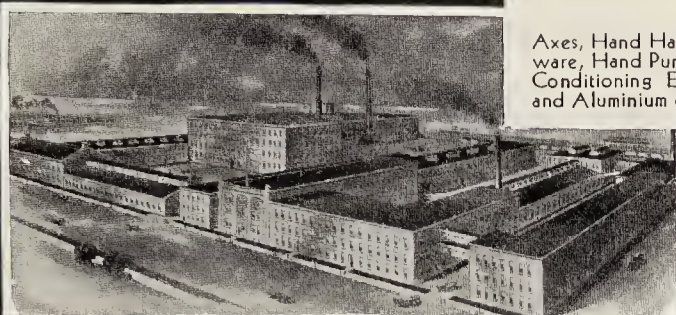

The new Taylor Recorder with practically frictionless mechanism housed in aluminum die-cast, dust-proof cases.

Our service for repairing and recalibrating instruments is conducted by skilled mechanics.

Let DIE CASTINGS

save you money

Here we show only a few of the parts we are making for various Canadian manufacturers. These include automobile ornaments and hardware, plumbing fixtures, padlocks, door stops, hose nozzles, telephone stands, clock cases, candlesticks, and gears and other parts for washing machines. If your product has metal parts now made by the slower and more expensive sand-casting method, it will pay you well to look into the savings and better satisfaction of die casting.

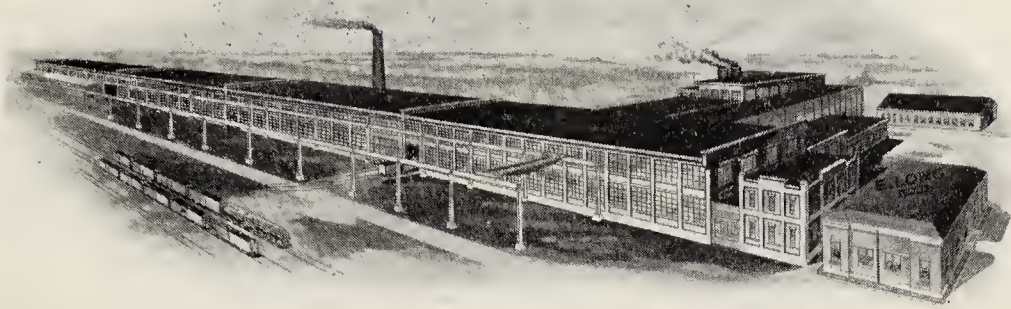

STRENGTH — Our zinc base alloy is from virgin metals of a tested, proven formula. A thermostat holds the casting temperature to an absolute pre-determined degree. Our machines, which are of the latest improved type, always produce a dense, homogeneous casting.

PRECISION — Our dies will assure all dimensions within extremely close limits. The variety of castings now being made in our plant is evidence of our ability to turn out successfully whatever you may require.

FINISH — Requires very little machining or polishing in your factory.

1938 EDITION CANADIAN TRADE INDEX

THIS copy of the 1938 edition of the CANADIAN TRADE INDEX is sent to you with the compliments of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

It is compiled and edited by the Association with the co-operation of members, government departments and commercial organizations; and is the authoritative directory of the products manufactured in Canada with the names of the firms making them.

The past year has been spent in checking and revising names, addresses and classifications, and this edition includes the most recent information available in regard to Canadian manufacturers having more than a local distribution for their products.

Owing to the detailed classification of the Index and the numerous advertisements, buyers are generally in a position to communicate direct with manufacturers of goods they desire to purchase, but should information be required regarding specialized lines the Association offers the gratuitous service of the Commercial Intelligence Department.

As it is our desire to keep this book accurate and up-to-date, we shall be grateful if users will report any errors or omissions that may come to their notice.

J. E. WALSH,
General Manager.

T. M. KERRUISH,
Manager,
Commercial Intelligence Department.

Kindly acknowledge receipt to Commercial Intelligence Department.

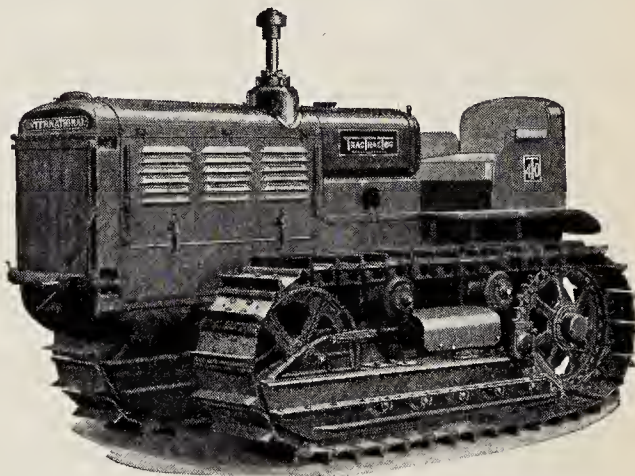

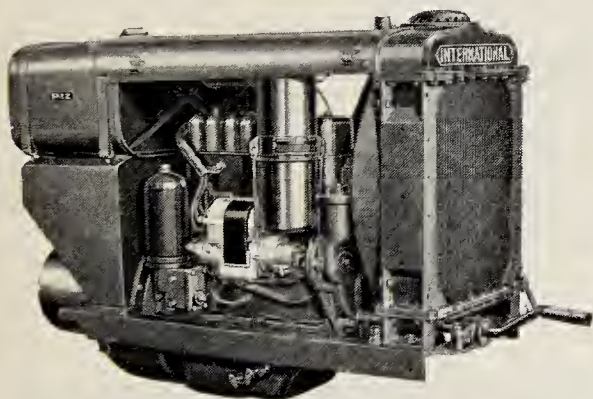

Dependable Power for Every Job

Internationals Are ALL TRUCK

There is only one standard of quality in the International truck line. Every International is a genuine International—and ALL TRUCK from end to end. That means you get the utmost in Stamina, Performance, and Economy whether you choose the Half-ton Light-Delivery Truck or the biggest Heavy-Duty Six-Wheel Truck in the line.

See these handsome modern trucks . . . call on the near-by International truck dealer or Company-owned branch and look over the model you need in your business.

Tractors and Power Units

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER — largest tractor builder in the world—has been producing industrial power for many years. Its engineering, manufacturing, distribution, and service policies are keyed to the needs of industrial power users. If your work calls for crawler tractors, wheel tractors, stationary power units, or power for a variety of mobile equipment, you can depend on the International Harvester line for performance and economy.

MORE STORAGE SPACE AT SURPRISINGLY LOW COST

Generous,
Unrestricted Storage
Space Inside—Neat
Externally and Internally

These two views of a typical building erected by our Contract and Engineering Department for the Brant Feed and Seed Co., Brantford, Ontario, show what we can do to give you added storage space. Buildings like this can be designed as an annex to your present building, or they can be made in separate fire-resisting storage buildings. You will be surprised how little it costs to have one of these buildings on your premises. They can be erected quickly and easily, without disturbing your operations. The knowledge and experience of our Contract Department, gained from 25 years' experience in building and designing metal buildings and barns, is at your disposal to solve your storage problems.

MONEL

Monel is a registered trade mark applied to a technically controlled Nickel-Copper alloy containing approximately two-thirds Nickel and one-third Copper. Monel is mined, smelted, refined, rolled and marketed solely by International Nickel.

Characteristics. Monel is a beautiful white metal closely resembling platinum in color. It is corrosion-resisting, will not rust. It is clean, bright, sanitary. Monel is strong and tough as steel and will resist wear and abrasion to an unusual degree. Because it is so close-textured it does not absorb colors or odors and is thus particularly suitable for food service and for use in the textile industry where dyes are being handled.

Foreword

SPECIAL EXPORT SECTION

THE material for this Section which gives in detail the various Government Services at the disposal of Canadian exporters, a statistical analysis of Canadian trade with the world and data in regard to export procedure, costs and financing of overseas shipments, was provided by the Department of Trade and Commerce in Ottawa.

The Department of Trade and Commerce of the Canadian Government, through the Commercial Intelligence Service with Trade Commissioners in the leading countries of the world, the Foreign Tariffs Division, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the Motion Picture Bureau, the Exhibition Branch, the Publicity Service in Canada and the United Kingdom, is an outstanding factor in the maintenance and extension of our Empire and Foreign trade. Throughout Canada manufacturers shipping abroad are agreed on its value and efficiency in investigating foreign markets, assisting in the establishment of export sales connections, supplying information concerning customs, packing and trade mark regulations, promoting and safeguarding their interests in other countries and advertising Canada and Canadian products. Exporting firms consider its Services an essential complement to their own organizations.

The Canadian Manufacturers Association co-operates very closely with the Commercial Intelligence Service of the Department of Trade and Commerce. It notifies members when Trade Commissioners are visiting Canada, arranges appointments and advises its members of the assistance which this Service provides.

For the benefit of firms contemplating export business and others who may require information on points of procedure from time to time there are included articles on "Some Yardsticks for measuring ability to Export", "Five Methods of doing Export Trade" and "Financing Foreign Trade", and a list of "Definitions of Technical Abbreviations used in Foreign Trade and Exchange Transactions".

It is hoped that the publication of this Section will prove useful not only to established and potential exporters in Canada but also to importers in other countries who may have occasion to consult it.

THE EDITOR.

PART 1.

Department of Trade and Commerce

The Act of Parliament which in 1887, created the Department of Trade and Commerce and which was brought into effect by an Order-in-Council, dated December 5th, 1892, merely provided that there should be a Department of the Government of Canada to be called the Department of Trade and Commerce. The duties and powers of the Minister were defined to be the execution of laws enacted by the Parliament of Canada relating to such matters connected with trade and commerce generally, as had not been assigned to any other Department of the Government. In the succeeding years a wide range of services have been performed and at present the Acts administered by the Department include The Canada Grain Act; Electricity Inspection Act; Gas Inspection Act; Electricity and Fluid Exportation Act; Electric Units Act; Precious Metals Marking Act; Statistics Act; Water Meters Act, Inspection of; Weights and Measures Inspection Act; Inland Water Freight Rates Act; An Act to place Canadian Coal used in the manufacture of iron or steel on a basis of equality with imported coal.

The various functions of the Department are carried out by the following organizations:—

EXPORT TRADE:

The Commercial Intelligence Service in Canada and abroad.
The Foreign Tariffs Division.
The Trade Routes and Steamship Subsidies Division.

PUBLICITY:

Publicity Bureau.
Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau.
Exhibition Commission in Great Britain and Canada.

STATISTICS:

Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

CANADA GRAIN ACT.INSPECTIONAL SERVICES:

The Electricity and Gas Inspection Services.
The Weights and Measures Inspection Service.
The Precious Metals Marking Act.

BOUNTY PAYMENT SERVICES:

An Act to place Canadian Coal used in the manufacture of iron or steel on a basis of equality with imported coal.

The Commercial Intelligence Service

The Commercial Intelligence Service is the chief agency of the government assisting export trade. It maintains abroad a staff of 35 Trade Commissioners and 23 Assistant Trade Commissioners, whose function it is to assist Canadian producers and manufacturers in developing export markets. This Service, which operates under the Department of Trade and Commerce, is at the free disposal of Canadian exporters.

When consulted by the Canadian exporter as to market outlets for his product, the Commercial Intelligence Service refers to several sources of information. Previous correspondence and reports from Trade Commissioners are examined. Canadian Export Statistics reveal the quantities, and to what countries the product in question is being shipped; and the import statistics of those countries show the quantities and sources of import. Consequently, the exporter can usually be given a good preliminary idea of the opportunities and difficulties, or competition likely to be met in any country. If there are any possibilities for his product, he is advised to communicate direct with the Trade Commissioner concerned, and to send him catalogues, samples, c.i.f. prices, and other data. The exporter is guided and assisted by the Trade Commissioner in forming a connection, and his interests are carefully watched until he is well established in the market.

Foreign importers, in many cases, approach the Trade Commissioner seeking possible sources of supply in Canada. Their enquiries are forwarded to the Department for publication in the Commercial Intelligence Journal and for circulation to Canadian firms likely to be interested.

The Trade Commissioner is often responsible for discovering and exploring new channels of trade. From his observations he may suspect that his territory may be developed into a market for some Canadian product. Once convinced that the commodity can compete with that offered by other countries, he will endeavour to interest importers in a trial shipment.

The Department at Ottawa publishes the Commercial Intelligence Journal, the subscription rate of which is the nominal one of $1.00 per year. This weekly publication contains the reports of Trade Commissioners pertaining to the market conditions of their territory in general, and the situation with regard to definite commodities in particular. It also contains other information regarding international trade, such as foreign exchange quotations, proposed sailings, tariff changes, trade inquiries, etc.

Assistance that can be given by Canadian Trade Commissioners

Many manufacturers and exporters apparently are not fully advised as to the valuable services that can be rendered by Canadian Trade Commissioners. The following summary is therefore issued with a view to rendering the activities of Canadian Trade Commissioners of greater use to manufacturers and exporters generally.

Commercial Information

1. Up-to-date information is available to manufacturers and exporters through the Commercial Intelligence Journal or by direct correspondence with the Department or any of the Canadian Trade Commissioners as to:—

- (a) The present and prospective demand for their goods.
- (b) Foreign and local competition (with specimens, catalogues and prices).
- (c) Details of best selling methods.
- (d) Reports on foreign buyers, though the Department cannot assume any responsibility in any opinions expressed by Trade Commissioners. They, however, will use their best endeavours to advise exporters as to the standing of such firms.
- (e) Specifications of articles in particular demand.
- (f) Inquiries for goods, and by means of an efficient system for collecting such inquiries the names can be obtained from time to time from the Commercial Intelligence Branch of the Department at Ottawa.

Agents, Buyers, and Distributors

2. Trade Commissioners will also:—

- (a) Recommend to intending exporters the names of responsible parties in a position to act as agents or buyers and distributors.
- (b) Give every possible assistance to such agents, etc., and will introduce them to influential individuals or associations who may be in a position to buy goods from Canada.
- (c) Give confidential information, when so requested, as to the activities of agents appointed by Canadian exporters, or firms to whom sales have been, or are being, made.

3. Trade Commissioners can assist in advising Canadian exporters and manufacturers:—

- (a) As to the best media in which to place advertisements and the form which such advertisements should take, i.e., their adaptation to the special requirements of the community.
- (b) In the display of catalogues, price lists and samples where they can be seen by potential buyers.
- (c) As to the distribution of trade literature and its probable cost.

General

4. (a) Trade Commissioners will always be glad to receive visitors from Canada and introduce them to possible buyers or agents, or put them in touch with such experts as legal advisers, interpreters, and shipping and banking representatives.
- (b) The good offices of Trade Commissioners can always be invoked with a view to settling difficulties which may arise between the Canadian exporters and buyers abroad.

- (c) Trade Commissioners will at any time provide such information as may be available as to freight rates customs, port dues, etc., so as to enable Canadian firms to quote prices for delivery overseas. They will be glad also to provide information respecting cost of travel, regulations applicable to commercial travellers, packing and marking of goods, shipping accommodation, storage arrangements, and any other foreign government regulations or conditions which have to be complied with.

Financial Arrangements

5. Particulars can be obtained with regard to:—

- (a) Terms of credit which may be given to foreign buyers.
- (b) Financial houses and banks who will discount bills or give credit
- (c) Regulations governing the recovery of debts in foreign countries.
- (d) Disposal of goods abroad contracted for but not accepted by foreign buyers.
- (e) Infringement of trade marks or patent rights; and advice on registration.

Information Necessary to the Trade Commissioner

When a Canadian exporter desires the assistance of a Trade Commissioner in marketing his goods abroad, he should with the first letter provide that officer with the following:—

- (a) Catalogues and best export prices c.i.f. port of entry, or failing that, f.o.b. Canadian port. It is quite useless to send prices f.o.b. factory.
- (b) Details regarding process of manufacture if convenient.
- (c) If not too bulky, samples of what the firms have to offer should be forwarded—not necessarily a full range—and a draft or money order sufficient to cover the customs duties and landing charges on the samples.
- (d) Bankers' references.
- (e) The proportion of output which is available for export, time required to ship from receipt of order and the quantity for which orders will be accepted.
- (f) Details of the experience he has had in the territory served by the Trade Commissioner.
- (g) Information regarding previous connections, if any, which he has either with agents or importers. If connections still exist, what, if any, bearing will they have on fresh contacts that may be established through the efforts of the Trade Commissioner.

The Trade Commissioner will thus be in a position to make a survey of his territory, report the opportunities for the lines to be exported, and can then either place the exporter in communication with reliable importers or recommend suitable agents.

Note.—Bentley's Second Phrase Code is used by Canadian Trade Commissioners.

What the Canadian Exporter can do for the Trade Commissioner

The meagre information frequently furnished by Canadian exporters places a serious handicap on the Trade Commissioner in his efforts to market their products.

A general statement, therefore, of the facts about the exporter, his banking references, whether he is already engaged in foreign trade, and for what period and to what extent, are some of the essentials which should be given in the first letter either to the Department or to a Trade Commissioner, particularly the latter. He also wants general data about the commodity which the exporter wishes to sell in that particular market, noting any special advantages pertaining to the line offered, particularly as compared with well-known articles of the same type from other countries. He also wants to know exactly what the manufacturer is himself willing to do to place his goods in the new field: the basis on which sales would be made to the importer or on which goods could be offered for sale by a recognized agent, and the commission that would be paid the latter; what would be required of an importing house or agent in order to obtain the agency for the line; whether the manufacturer would send consignment stock or samples and in what quantity; whether he is prepared to advertise or to co-operate in advertising and to what extent; the facilities possessed by the manufacturer for export shipment, and the kind of supervision that is exercised by him over the packing of goods destined for a distant market.

Prices

Prices should never be quoted from an interior manufacturing point in Canada. Where quotations c.i.f. port of destination are not practicable, they should be given f.o.b. steamer, but it is strongly recommended that prices should be quoted c.i.f. This is a most important point, as the foreign buyer has no definite knowledge of the charges likely to be incurred if quotations are f.o.b. cars at port of shipment and freight rates from some interior point in Canada to the seaboard are unobtainable in foreign countries. He has no means of knowing insurance rates, or the elements that enter into the fixing of the premiums. As a rule he is unable to obtain a quotation of an outward freight rate at an inward port, as the general practice of steamship companies is to refer a request for a freight rate from (say) Montreal to Auckland to the agent in the former city, although an approximate rate may be quoted. The foreign buyer is at a distinct disadvantage unless prices are quoted c.i.f.

Discounts

Discounts should be printed, or typewritten, preferably on a folder or slip accompanying the catalogue. In submitting an illustrated descriptive catalogue to prospective customers the importer should not be placed in the position of having to disclose the exact terms on which the goods are offered to him.

Gross and Net Weight

A knowledge of the gross and net weights per unit quoted is essential. Without these the prospective purchaser is unable to estimate laid down costs.

Summary of Points to be Noted

The fullest possible information in regard to the commodity and complete details on the following points would greatly aid the Trade Commissioners in the intelligent handling of inquiries addressed to them as to the introduction and subsequent marketing of Canadian goods on behalf of exporters:—

1. Cable address, code used, and special code words not in the regular code books.
2. Bankers' references.
3. (a) The basis on which prices are quoted, whether c.i.f. main foreign ports; f.a.s. Canadian ports; or f.o.b. vessel.
- (b) Are prices in Canadian or American funds?
- (c) If prices are c.i.f. and transshipment has to be made, are such items as consular charges and disbursements at port of transshipment and/or unloading for account of buyer?
4. Are quotations firm, or subject to change without notice due to fluctuations in costs of raw material?
5. On what quantity basis are quotations made? Can prices be reduced on quantity orders, and if so how much?
6. Are orders subject to acceptance by exporter?
7. What brand do lines bear, and are these to be sold under this brand in foreign markets?
8. What is the nature of packing? Heavy wooden crates, boxes, new bags or burlap?

9. Are lines stocked and available for immediate shipment? If not, how long after receipt of order will goods go forward?
10. What are your terms? Is there a special discount for cash?
11. What is the gross and net weight in pounds? Measurement in cubic feet?

With the foregoing information on hand, supplemented by recent catalogues and descriptive literature, and, if not too bulky, samples—not necessarily a full range—Trade Commissioners are put in a position to give the best service to Canadian exporters and can either place them in communication with reliable importers or recommend suitable agents.

Trade Commissioners' Tours

The periodical return of Trade Commissioners for official tours of the Dominion is one of the most important factors in effecting practical co-operation between the Canadian exporter and the foreign importer. The Trade Commissioner can during the course of his tour call upon or discuss export problems with practically every firm specially interested in exporting to his territory. The Department endeavours to bring back the Trade Commissioners by a scheme of rotation, giving special consideration to officers in tropical or unhealthy posts, but these visits are always subject to the exigencies of trading conditions, and of the Service generally. Well in advance of the time of arrival in Canada they circularize individual exporters for the purpose of determining what special points they wish to take up and on which full information is secured. In addition to this form of publicity, the department publishes a notice in the Commercial Intelligence Journal inviting firms who may be interested in any particular territory to state whether or not an interview is desired. The names of such firms, together with those with whom the Trade Commissioner has been in communication, form the basis of the itinerary. Firms anxious to interview any Trade Commissioner on tour may do so by communicating with the Director of the service.

Foreign Tariffs Division

Information on the world's customs tariffs and related enactments is disseminated in various ways by the Foreign Tariffs Division of the Department of Trade and Commerce. The Foreign Tariffs Division answers specific enquiries, prepares articles for the Commercial Intelligence Journal, issues leaflets, and circulars. It co-operates with other branches of the government service in assembling data for tariff negotiations between Canada and other countries.

Mainly, the Division gives advice, to those concerned, on customs duties leviable on Canadian goods in export markets. Although application of a country's customs tariffs to imported goods involves official interpretation of the tariff by the authorities of the importing country, it is possible even when definite rates of duty cannot be quoted to give a useful description of existing tariff conditions. As well as study of tariff schedules and published rulings for the purpose of determining classification and rate of duty, the furnishing of information on customs duties calls for investigation of commercial treaties, methods of valuation of goods for duty purposes, anti-dumping legislation, Canadian content required for applying tariff preference, the forms of certificates of origin prescribed, invoicing and consular procedure. In recent years import licensing, quota allotments and related systems of controlling trade, are in some foreign countries of more importance than customs duties. The Division's activities extend to furnishing data on these subjects and any other governmental trade control measures that would affect Canadian exports, such as merchandise marks laws, food standards, regulations on animal and plant pests.

As tariffs and trade regulations are subject to constant change, the collection of dependable reference material for this work is a large task. The chief single source of information on the world's tariff is the International Customs Tariffs Bureau at Brussels, created in 1890, under a convention of many countries and since maintained by the leading commercial countries of the world, including Canada. This Bureau translates and circulates tariff laws. The customs laws and regulations published by the respective governments, reports of Canadian Trade Commissioners abroad, commercial intelligence journals of important commercial countries, miscellaneous official documents and general reference books, are all used.

Subsidized Steamship Services

When the Department came into being, a number of local and foreign steamship services which previously had been subsidized by the Canadian Government and payments made by the Department of Finance, were placed under its jurisdiction.

Ocean subsidies are paid to assist in the maintenance of services which would otherwise be unable to operate, on account of insufficient revenue, and which supply necessary trade connections between Canada and other countries; for the benefit of Canadian exporters, and to enable them, by means of reasonable freight rates and regular sailings, to compete with other countries in foreign markets; and for the transportation of Canadian mails overseas, free of charge to the Post Office Department, and without additional cost to the Government.

Subsidies for local services are paid to assist in the maintenance of coasting services for the purpose of giving regular sailings and adequate facilities for communication between ports and settlements on the mainland, which are in many cases far removed from railways and in some cases have no highway facilities; to give necessary and regular communication to islands isolated from the mainland; for the free transportation of mails without additional cost to the Government in cases where the services performed are found suitable for that purpose by the Post Office Department; and to carry supplies to outlying and otherwise isolated districts.

Publicity

To meet the increasing demand from Canadian and foreign publications for informative and interpretive material relative to both external and internal affairs, the Publicity Branch was organized about ten years ago. Its primary functions are to prepare such articles, or supply material for articles, to trade and industrial publications both at home and abroad. It also places in the Canadian press such advertising as may be deemed desirable from time to time to direct attention to the services which the Department offers to Canadian business men and in selected publications in foreign countries featuring Canadian sources of supply and Canadian products.

Canadian Trade Commissioners are furnished regularly for local distribution with news items and pictorial matter concerning Canada which is finding its way to an ever increasing extent in the rotogravure and other sections of the leading newspapers throughout the world.

With the co-operation of the Department of Transport and through the Canadian Press, a daily radio news service thoroughly Canadian in character is provided to all shipping on the Pacific Ocean within a listening radius.

Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau

The Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau was organized in its present form some fifteen years ago for the production and distribution of films and photographic materials and to act as a central organization for the production of such materials for all Government Departments. The headquarters and plant are in Ottawa.

Its activities are carried on under three divisions, viz: motion picture division, 16 mm film division, and still photographic division. The Bureau is completely equipped with the most up-to-date facilities for the production and processing of all kinds of sound and silent films, film slides, photographs, lantern slides, enlargements, transparencies and other photographic materials for the purpose of disseminating information with respect to Canadian resources, basic industries, scenic attractions, etc., and by this means to promote trade and tourist travel.

The bulk of the film and photographic work in field, studio and laboratory is performed by its permanent staff, but contact is maintained with selected cinematographers and photographers in all parts of Canada to whom, if occasion demands, assignments may be given, thus ensuring, at all times, Dominion-wide coverage. Close co-operation is also maintained with the Photographic Section of the Royal Canadian Air Force, the Photographic Department of the Canadian National Railways and other similar organizations.

The following table indicates the distribution of films representing a total footage of approximately 5,500,000 feet in active circulation as of November 30th, 1937:

In addition, a series of sound films dealing with Canadian industries, resources, scenic and tourist attractions is in active circulation among the theatres in Canada, the United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, the British West Indies, India, the United States and other parts of the English-speaking world. It is also planned to produce foreign language versions of these films for exhibition in other important countries.

Canadian Government Trade Commissioners are kept supplied with films and photographs for circulation, exhibition and publication. The Bureau not only co-operates with the other Branches of the Department of Trade and Commerce, but with other Dominion Government Departments, including the Canadian Government Exhibition Commission, the Director of Publicity in Great Britain and the Canadian Travel Bureau. A large amount of pictorial display material is furnished for the use of the Canadian Government Exhibition Commission, the Director of Trade Publicity in Great Britain, the Canadian Travel Bureau and other such organizations.

The still photograph division maintains a library of over 20,000 photographs of Canada, thousands of which are distributed to the press, trade and other publications each year.

Canadian Government Exhibition Commission

The organizing of Canadian Exhibits abroad originated in the Department of Agriculture but later, with a view to stimulating immigration, was taken over by the Department of Immigration and Colonization and a permanent personnel known as the Exhibition Commission was appointed. In 1927 the Exhibition Commission was transferred to the Department of Trade and Commerce and the headquarters, with staff and stores, was moved to London.

The headquarters in London consists of a commissioner, assistant commissioner, and a staff of designers, decorators, painters and workmen with warehouses for the storage of equipment and exhibits. The commission is represented in Ottawa by a liaison officer with two branch offices at St. Catharines, Ontario, and Winnipeg, Manitoba, for the collection and preparation of exhibits.

While its primary purpose is to organize Canadian exhibits at international exhibitions when it is considered advantageous to do so, other important activities include comprehensive methods of advertising Canadian goods throughout the British Isles by participation in all leading exhibitions, assisting Canadian manufacturers to demonstrate their products under the most favourable conditions, and continuous publicity regarding Canadian natural resources designed to direct attention to the Dominion as a land of opportunity.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics

A Commission on Statistics in 1912 recommended a series of specific reforms and enlargements in Canadian statistics, and a policy of statistical co-ordination for the Dominion, under central direction.

Following the recommendations of this report, the office of Dominion Statistician was created in 1915 and three years later the Dominion Bureau of Statistics was set up by statute as a central statistical organization.

At present the main branches of the Bureau are: Administration; Population—Census and Vital Statistics; agricultural statistics; fisheries, furs, animal and dairy products; mining, metallurgical and chemical; forestry and allied industries; construction; general manufactures; external trade (imports and exports); internal trade; transportation; financial statistics; statistics of administration of justice; institutional statistics; educational statistics; and general statistics.

The main achievement of the bureau has been in the organization of the several subjects in correlation with each other in accordance with this general plan, and the consequent establishment of a comprehensive viewpoint of the country as a "going concern." In addition, there has been created what is frequently called a central "thinking office" in statistics, continuously in touch with general conditions and the line of probable developments.

The final concept in the organization of the Bureau of Statistics is that of a national laboratory for social and economic research. Statistics are not merely a record of what has been, but are for use in planning what shall be; it is the duty of a statistical bureau to assist directly in the day-to-day problems of administration, as well as to provide their theoretic background. One of the most significant of recent developments in administration is the extent to which statistical organization has been increased as a guide to national policy. Though its usefulness has only begun, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics has laid the foundations for a service comparable with the increasingly important position taken by Canada in the economic and political world.

Canada Grain Act

Under the Canada Grain Act of 1912 the Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada was created as a semi-judicial and administrative body to administer the Act. Its duties and powers are to provide for the inspection, weighing and registration of grain; to license and supervise the operation of grain elevators; to collect and collate grain statistics; to maintain a grain research laboratory; to operate terminal elevators constructed by the Dominion Government; and to inquire into any matter upon or without complaint made relating to the handling of grain under the Act. It also administers the Inland Water Freight Rates Act.

The board, which consists of a chief commissioner and two commissioners, has its offices in Winnipeg. Four assistant commissioners, stationed respectively at Winnipeg, Calgary, Saskatoon and Fort William, investigate complaints and thereafter make a full report to the board. In addition to the executive offices, which include the secretary with clerical staff, the Licence and Bonding and Statistics Branch, the organization comprises the Inspection, Weighing and Registration branches, the management of the Canadian Government Elevators, the Grain Appeal Tribunals to decide on appeals from decisions of grain inspecting officers, and Committees on Grain Standards to select and settle standards for the different grades of grain in the Eastern and Western divisions.

Inspection offices are located at Winnipeg, Calgary and Edmonton for primary inspection, at Fort William and Vancouver for terminal and final inspection, at Montreal and Toronto for resampling and checking western grain passing through the Eastern division, and grading grain grown in the Eastern division. Inspection services are also maintained at all other points at which terminal elevators are situated. The Weighing Branch provides weighing services on all grain delivered to or shipped from terminal elevators and maintains staffs at all points at which terminal elevators are situated. The Registration Branch records all terminal and Eastern warehouse receipts and transfer receipts for grain unloaded into terminal or Eastern elevators, and cancels these receipts when the grain is shipped. Of the public terminal elevators constructed by the Department of Trade and Commerce only those at Moose Jaw, Saskatoon, Lethbridge, Calgary, and Edmonton are now maintained and operated by a general manager under the board. The Grain Research Laboratory at Winnipeg acts in an advisory capacity to the board, conducts investigations to determine the value of the different grades and varieties of grain, and investigates problems connected with grading, transportation and storage, moisture content and other problems peculiar to grain.

Review of Canada's Foreign Trade, 1936-37

For the fourth consecutive fiscal year Canada's foreign trade in 1936-37 achieved a substantial expansion over the preceding fiscal period and maintained a rate of recovery exceeding that of world international trade generally. In each month both imports and domestic exports were greater in value than in the corresponding month of the year before. For the full twelve months ended March 31, 1937, imports reached a value of $671,876,000 and exports $1,074,244,000, being increases over 1935-36 of 19.4 per cent and 25.0 per cent respectively. Compared with the depression low reached in 1932-33 the value of trade in 1936-37 represented a gain of 65.3 per cent for imports and 101.0 per cent for exports.

Imports and exports in 1936-37 gained in quantity as well as value, the former gaining by 15.8 per cent over 1935-36 in quantity and the latter by 17.5 per cent. While the trade of Canada in value is still below the levels attained before the world economic crisis, examination of leading imports and exports reveals that on a quantity basis recovery has proceeded a great deal further.

The increase in Canada's trade had a wide geographical distribution. Imports from all continents but Africa, which supplied less than 8 per cent of the total, increased in 1936-37 over 1935-36. Exports to all continents increased in the same period. The United States remained Canada's most valuable external market and most important source of supply, the United Kingdom being second with a long lead over the next nearest competitor.

It will be noted from the statistics in the following table that Canada has expanded sales abroad to a greater extent than purchases from other countries. In consequence, the balance of trade, which has been substantially in Canada's favour in recent years, became even more favourable in 1936-37, amounting to $402,369,000. This large favourable balance of trade has been surpassed in only two fiscal years since Confederation. viz: 1917-18 when abnormal war conditions prevailed and in 1925-26.

NOTE:—It is pointed out with reference to the statistics in the above table, and particularly regarding Canada's imports in 1935-36 and 1936-37 throughout this report, that the excise duty, which has been included in the value of distilled spirits, chiefly whiskey, imported into Canada from countries entitled to the British Preferential Tariff since the fiscal year 1920-21, is excluded as from April 1, 1935. Imports in 1935-36 and 1936-37, particularly from United Kingdom, are consequently lower than would otherwise be the case.

Canada's Position in World Trade

During the calendar year 1936, Canada advanced in relative position among the leading trading nations, occupying fifth place in value of total trade as compared with sixth place in 1935. In import trade Canada moved from ninth place in 1935 to eighth in 1936, and advanced in rank as an exporting country from fifth to fourth position, being surpassed by only the United States, United Kingdom, and Germany. The table below gives further details respecting the relative position of the leading commercial countries of the world.

Proportions of Trade in Raw and Manufactured Products

The stage attained in the industrial development of a country is indicated by the character of the goods it imports and exports. In the early years of Canada's development imports were made up chiefly of manufactured products and exports of raw and semi-manufactured products. Since the opening of the twentieth century this has been almost reversed; a large percentage of the imports consisting of raw and semi-manufactured products for use in Canadian manufacturing industries, and the exports consisting predominantly of products which have undergone some process of manufacture. In fact, the leading manufactures of Canada are for the processing of raw materials in the production of which Canada excels, and many of these processed domestic products are marketed abroad. Furthermore, as the population of the country grows, the range of elaborated goods formerly imported, which may be manufactured on a competitive basis of mass production within the country, expands, so that there are now many industries in Canada, serving the domestic and even foreign markets, using imported raw materials such as rubber, cotton and sugar. Since the opening of the present century, Canada has passed through much the same stages of development in her economic life as did the United States during the last quarter of the nineteenth century, although the trend in Canada has been more pronounced in increasing the proportion of partly and fully manufactured goods as compared with raw materials exported, rather than in increasing the proportion of raw materials compared with that of partly and fully manufactured goods imported. Since 1929, the rapid decline in commodity prices, which has affected raw materials more than manufactured goods, has tended to increase the percentages of both imports and exports of manufactures on a value basis.

It will be observed from the statistics in the preceding table, showing "Canada's Imports and Exports by Leading Countries, according to Degree of Manufacture", fiscal year 1936-37, that Canada's imports from those countries with highly developed manufacturing industries consist of manufactured products, and her exports to those countries are made up largely of raw and semi-manufactured products: while on the other hand Canada's trade with countries whose industries are not so highly developed consist chiefly, in the case of imports, of raw and semi-manufactured products, and in the case of exports, of manufactured products.

The preceding table shows how Canada's imports and exports, analyzed into three categories of raw materials, semi-manufactured products and fully manufactured goods, are distributed amongst (a) the United Kingdom; (b) Other Empire Countries; (c) the United States; and (d) other foreign Countries, for the fiscal years ended March 31, 1930-31 to 1936-37.

Distribution of Canada's Trade by Continents and Countries

In 1936-37 Canada purchased more goods from every continent, except Africa, than in 1935-36. As a source of supply to Canada, North America was in first position by a wide margin. Imports from North America were predominantly from the United States, which supplied more than half the Dominion's total imports, and more than twice those obtained from Europe. As percentage of the total, imports from Europe declined in 1936-37 as compared with the previous year, while the proportion from North America increased. The relative share of North America in Canada's imports is still below that of 1931-32.

Canada sold more goods to Europe in 1936-37 than to any other continent. Total exports to Europe amounted to $488,300,000, of which the United Kingdom absorbed $498,000,000. North America, which constituted Canada's largest external market in the previous year, took second place in 1936-37 with exports of $460,400,000, although the United States, to which exports amounted to $435,000,000, again purchased more than any other individual country. The continents of Europe and North America, including the great consuming markets of the United Kingdom and the United States, accounted altogether for 89.4 per cent of Canada's exports in 1936-37, compared with 88.9 per cent in the previous year. The remaining 10 per cent was fairly evenly distributed among the other continents.

The following statement on imports from forty leading countries shows how predominant the two great English-speaking countries are as a source of supply of Canadian imports. The United States supplied approximately 59 per cent of the Dominion's imports in 1936-37, while the United Kingdom, although having only about one-third the United States share in Canada's imports, had, nevertheless, more than ten times as large a share as Argentina which ranks third. Argentina moved into third place as a source of supply from fifteenth place in 1935-36 as a result of a striking increase in imports of 213.1 per cent. The countries shown in the table account for about 99 per cent of total imports in each year. The wide geographical distribution of the increase in imports is indicated by the number of plus signs in the last three columns of the table. Imports from thirty-four of the forty countries increased in 1936-37 as compared with 1933-34; thirty-two increased as compared with 1934-35; and twenty-six increased as compared with 1935-36.

The following table shows "Canada's Domestic Exports to Forty Leading Countries". The countries shown account for over 98 per cent of total domestic exports in each year. The United States and United Kingdom rank first and second respectively as export markets, the United States being first in the last three fiscal years, while the United Kingdom was first in 1933-34. Statistics of Canadian exports, by countries, should be read with the qualification that all the goods shown as exported to some countries may not finally be consumed in those countries, while on the other hand other countries may ultimately buy and use more Canadian goods than the Canadian export statistics indicate. For example, exports to the United Kingdom are known to include large amounts of wheat and other grains shipped "on order". The final destination is not known at the time of exportation from Canada.

Similarly, considerable quantities of Canadian exports are consigned to one or other of the great European free ports and thence transhipped to the country of consumption. Since the country of final destination in these cases is not known at the time when the goods leave Canada, even to the owners, exports to such countries as the United Kingdom, Belgium, Netherlands, etc., which carry on a large entrepôt trade, are higher than would be the case if the exports in question were credited to the countries of final consumption. Exports to other countries such as Norway, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, etc., which obtain Canadian goods indirectly, would be correspondingly higher than the Canadian export statistics indicate.

As with the corresponding table on imports, the wide geographical extent of the recovery in export trade is indicated by the predominance of plus signs in the last three columns of the table below. Exports to thirty-six of the forty countries increased in 1936-37 as compared with 1935-36. Compared with 1934-35, there were thirty-four increases, and with 1933-34, thirty-two increases.

Canada's Domestic Exports of Eighty-six Leading Commodities

The following table shows exports of eighty-six leading commodities from Canada in 1936-37 with increase or decrease, compared with 1935-36. The items shown account for over 94 per cent of total exports. Seventy of the eighty-six items increased in value of exports, and forty-two of the items for which quantities are recorded increased in volume.

Exports of Gold in Canadian Statistics

In Canadian trade statistics gold exported as merchandise is included as such as a part of the total commodity exports. Gold exported is considered merchandise when the export does not reduce domestic monetary reserves. The present procedure was determined by the Bureau of Statistics in conference with the Bank of Canada and the Department of National Revenue and dates from April 1, 1936. Statistics for earlier years have been revised back to 1926. In former times there was a movement of gold from Canada in the form of "Gold bearing quartz, dust, nuggets and gold bullion obtained direct from mining operations". When the Royal Mint in Ottawa began to refine gold, exports formerly shipped as "Gold bearing quartz, dust etc.", began to be exported in the form of bullion and was recorded under Coin and Bullion as distinct from Merchandise. In order to maintain comparability with the statistics of previous years, and also since Canada is a large gold-producing country and exports of gold are as much a part of national production as any other item, it was considered expedient to make the change indicated.

Since February, 1936, the Bank of Canada has been holding gold under earmark for clients abroad. This fact directly influences exports. Holdings of gold under earmark from February, 1936 to March, 1937, are shown below:—

Agriculture

To get a proper perspective of Canadian agriculture one has to consider the value of agricultural production in relation to Canadian industry as a whole. With agricultural production valued at $1,061,624,000 for 1936, agriculture was the outstanding contributor to national wealth among the primary industries, and was exceeded only by manufactures in the industries of secondary production.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimates the gross value of agricultural production of Canada at $1,061,624,000 for 1936 as compared with 949,540,000, the revised estimate for 1935. This represents an increase of $112,084,000 or 11.8 per cent. The value of agricultural production of the prairie provinces was estimated at $402,465,000 in 1936, compared with $356,384,000 for the previous year.

The total area sown to the principal field crops in 1937 was estimated at 57,783,600 acres, an increase of 121 thousand acres as compared with 1936.

The per capita consumption of eggs increased from 16.8 dozens in 1920 to 21.66 dozens in 1936. Total consumption of eggs in Canada in 1936 amounted to 238,884,006 dozens. The per capita consumption of butter in 1921 was 25.79 pounds; in 1936 it reached 31.42, cheese used in 1921 amounted to 2.51 pounds per capita and last year 3.37 pounds. In 1921 the per capita consumption of ice cream was 4.96 pints, in 1931 it had grown to 6.32 pints and in 1936, decreased to 5.49 pints.

The value of farm capital of Canada in 1936 as estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics amounted to 4.6 billion dollars, made up as follows:

Land and Buildings	$3,554,474,000
Implements and Machinery	494,197,000
*Livestock	579,704,000
Total	$4,628,375,000

*Including poultry and animals on fur farms.

This figure is $84,016,000 less than the value for 1935 which amounted to $4,712,391,000. Reductions in value were shown for lands and buildings, and for implements and machinery.

The distribution of agricultural capital in Canada by provinces is interesting in that it follows closely the distribution of population, as is shown by the following figures for 1936:

PROVINCE	Estimated Value of Farm Capital	Production
Prince Edward Island	$ 53,456,000	$ 15,392,000
Nova Scotia	121,263,000	28,437,000
New Brunswick	108,720,000	29,767,000
Quebec	827,191,000	189,724,000
Ontario	1,341,731,000	354,380,000
Manitoba	310,870,000	77,066,000
Saskatchewan	1,027,408,000	181,751,000
Alberta	689,181,000	143,648,000
British Columbia	148,548,000	41,459,000
Total	$4,628,375,000	$1,061,624,000

From these figures it will be apparent that it took $4.36 of investment to produce $1.00 of revenue in the agricultural industry last year.

The relative standing of the several sources of Canadian agricultural revenue for the years 1932 to 1936 are shown in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

From a financial standpoint, despite depressions in prices, the Canadian farming industry appears to be on an essentially sound basis.

Under the Dairy Industry Act administered by the Federal Department of Agriculture, all butter and cheese for export must be graded, as a result of which Canadian dairy products have gained a reputation second to none on the export market. In fact Canadian cheese commands a premium over all other cheese imported into the markets of the United Kingdom.

The total value of field crops in Canada in 1937 is estimated at $556,382,000 as compared with $621,480,400 in 1936 a decrease of 10.5 per cent. The preliminary estimate places the Canadian apple crop for 1937 at 5,094,900 barrels. This is 979,700 barrels more than the 1936 crop, and approximately 663,600 barrels above the average for the five years 1931-35.

The yield of potatoes for 1937 amounted to 42,633,000 cwt., an increase of 7.6 per cent over last year's production, but lower prices reduced the value by 37.6 per cent.

The increased popularity of Canadian fruit and vegetables, both fresh and canned, on the export market is due essentially to the grading and inspection service and regulations provided by the Government.

Fisheries

The year 1936 was the most successful experienced by the Canadian fisheries since 1930. The total value of production in 1936 was $39,165,055, this total representing the value of the fish as marketed, whether sold for consumption fresh, or as canned, smoked, dried, etc. The value shows an increase over the preceding year of $4,737,201, or 14 per cent, and an increase over 1932, the low year of the depression period, of $13,207,946, or 51 per cent. To the total value for 1936, the sea fisheries contributed $32,951,504, or 84 per cent, and the inland fisheries, $6,213,551, or 16 per cent.

The salmon, lobster and cod fisheries are of chief importance, the value of output of the three fisheries, combined, representing 55 per cent of the total fisheries production of the Dominion. The marketed value of the salmon was $13,867,513, of which 96½ per cent is credited to British Columbia, and the remaining 3½ per cent distributed among the four Atlantic coast provinces. The lobster fishery of the Atlantic coast had a production value of $4,383,428, and the cod fishery a value of $3,331,750. Practically all of the cod is taken on the Atlantic coast, the largest share being credited to Nova Scotia, with Quebec second. Other leading fisheries, with production values of over a million dollars each, are those of herring, sardine, whitefish, halibut, haddock and pickerel. The salmon and herring include both sea and inland, while the whitefish and pickerel are taken in the inland waters only. The other kinds mentioned above are of the sea fisheries.

Among the provinces, British Columbia, by reason of the wealth of its salmon fishery, is much in advance of any other province with respect to value of fisheries production, while Nova Scotia, with its lobster, cod and haddock fisheries, is second, and New Brunswick, with the sardine and lobster fisheries, third. Compared with the preceding year, increases in value of production are recorded for all of the provinces, British Columbia, the leading province, showing an increase of 14 per cent, and Nova Scotia, second in importance, an increase of 13 per cent.

The total quantity of fish of all kinds, including shell fish, taken by Canadian fishermen during the year 1936 was 11,088,279 cwt., with a value at the point of landing of $22,083,550, compared with a catch of 9,532,016 cwt., and a value of $20,755,787 in 1935.

Exports.—The export trade in fish and fishery products dropped considerably during the depression, but recovery commenced in 1933 and the trade has since shown a steady advance. In 1936 the total value of exports was $25,398,102, an increase over the preceding year of $538,616, or 2 per cent, and over 1932, the low year of the depression period, of $6,645,995, or 35 per cent. The principal item in every year is canned salmon, and in 1936 the value of exports of this product was $6,367,323. Other principal items, in order of value in 1936, are lobster in shell ($2,100,762); canned lobster ($2,080,005); whitefish, fresh ($1,485,827); salmon, fresh ($1,455,878); and dried cod ($1,074,572). The countries to which Canadian fish of one kind or another was exported in 1936 numbered 85. The United Kingdom took goods to the value of $5,781,730, or 23 per cent of the total exports, while the United States took $12,917,592, or 51 per cent. The exports to Australia were valued at $1,668,594.

Imports.—The imports into Canada, for consumption, of fish and fishery products during the year 1936 had a total value of $2,918,251, compared with $2,597,856 in 1935 and $2,122,748 in 1934. Among the principal items are sardines from Norway, oysters and canned tuna from the United States, and crabs or clams from the United States and Japan. There are also considerable imports of fish oil, chiefly cod liver oil and whale oil.

Forest Resources

In Canada there are approximately one hundred and sixty different species and varieties of plants reaching tree size. Only thirty-one of these are coniferous, but their wood forms 80 per cent. of the standing timber and 95 per cent. of the sawn timber. While the actual number of species of deciduous-leaved trees seems large in comparison to their commercial importance, out of a total of some ninety species and varieties only four or five are worthy of comparison with the conifers.

Of the total area under forest at the present time, amounting to 1,254,082 square miles, about 395,538 square miles carries merchantable timber, and 405,245 square miles carries young growth which if protected from fire and other damage will eventually produce merchantable timber. All this area is so situated as to be commercially exploitable at present. The remaining 453,299 square miles is considered as non-productive or unprofitable to operate under present conditions, although most of it will undoubtedly become commercially exploitable in the near future. In round figures some ninety per cent. of Canada's forest area is still owned by the state.

Forest Depletion

It has been estimated that Canada's total forest production in 1935 involved the cutting of 2,2,440,809 cubic feet of standing timber. This constitutes only the annual depletion for use and to it must be added the volume of material annually destroyed by fire, which exceeds 230,000,000 cubic feet of merchantable timber and the young growth on 550,000 acres. Insects and fungi destroy annually at least 700,000,000 cubic feet. The latest available estimate places Canada's forest resources at 273,656 million cubic feet of standing timber. There is a steady increase in volume taking place in all healthy stands of timber due to annual growth; this can be stimulated by the application of scientific forest management. It is now a profitable investment to plant trees in Canada under certain conditions.

Production

The production of sawn timber in Canada reached its maximum in 1911 with a reported cut of 4,918,202 M. ft. b.m. The 1935 production represents an increase of 15.3 per cent. in quantity from 1934. The products of the group of industries under sawmill operations are compared for 1934 and 1935 in the preceding table.

Fur Trade

Hunting and fishing are among the earliest pursuits known to mankind, and it was the lure of the fur trade which brought adventurers to what is now the Canadian domain and led to the colonization and development of the country. There have been many changes since the industry was first established. The railway revolutionized conditions throughout the country, then more recently the advent of the motor vehicle has influenced the extension of highways to the borders of settlement, and beyond. Boats ply the larger lakes and rivers, while for the transportation of furs from the more inaccessible districts, the aeroplane is now requisitioned. Competition has increased and new territory is eagerly sought as in the days prior to 1921. This increase in trapping and the improved methods of capture, together with the advance of lumbering, mining and agricultural settlement, have driven fur-bearing animals farther and farther afield, and if government authority had not intervened there would inevitably have followed a general depletion, and for some species, extinction. To meet the situation, the provinces, all of which have jurisdiction in matters affecting the fur-bearing animals and game in their respective provinces, have enacted laws to control the fur trade. Under these laws the provinces may make provision for closed seasons, for the licensing of trappers and traders, for the collection of royalties on pelts, state the methods which may be used in the capture of the animals, and make such other regulations, from time to time, as may be found necessary. Conservation has been made a special object of policy of the Dominion Government, also, through the organization in 1916 of the Advisory Board of Wild Life Protection, to co-ordinate the efforts of various departments in matters relating to the conservation of the wild life resources of Canada. The Northwest Game Act and the Migratory Birds Convention Act are the most important subjects to which the attention of the Board is specially directed and upon which it makes advisory recommendations. In addition, the Board investigates and studies all problems relating to the protection and better utilization of all fur-bearing animals, "big game" mammals and to bird life, whether game birds, insectivorous birds, or others. The Board serves entirely without remuneration and during the whole period of its existence it has incurred no expenditure. The activities of the Dominion as a whole, with respect to wild life, are co-ordinated through biennial conferences of Provincial and Dominion Game Protection officials. These conferences are called by the Department of Mines and Resources, and have done much good in evolving plans for the preservation of Canada's wild life resources.

Fur farming now plays an important part in the fur trade of Canada, the value of pelts of ranch-bred animals representing approximately 40 per cent of the total value of the raw fur production of the Dominion. For many years fur farming was concerned almost entirely with the silver fox, but during the past few years much success has been attained in the raising of minks. Other kinds of fur-bearers—red, cross and blue fox, raccoon, skunk, marten, fisher, fitch—are also found on the farms, but their numbers are small in comparison with the numbers of silver foxes and minks.

The chief markets for Canadian furs are London and New York; the trade tables for the 12 months ended June 30, 1936, show that of the total of $16,159,275 worth of raw furs exported, the United Kingdom received $9,321,147 and the United States, $6,015,782. At the close of the Great War, Montreal took a position as an international fur market, holding the first Canadian fur auction sale in 1920. At the sales held in Montreal during the year 1936 the pelts sold numbered 868,164, while the value amounted to $5,397,042. Fur auction sales are held also at Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver. An important industry in Canada is the manufacture of fur goods, such as coats, capes, scarves, muffs, etc. In 1935 the number of plants so engaged was 309, and the total value of output $12,518,670. Then there is the fur dressing and dyeing industry whose 13 plants in 1935 treated fur skins to the number of 5,738,920. The chief kinds of furs, with regard to number treated, were rabbit (2,736,041) and muskrat (1,131,396).

Minerals

Canada's mineral industry is second in importance among the primary industries of the Dominion. It is surpassed in value of output only by the great basic industry of agriculture, and brings to the nation a prestige far beyond the monetary measure of the mineral output. Among the mineral producing countries of the world Canada stands first in nickel, platinum metals and asbestos, second in zinc, third in gold and copper, and fourth in lead.

Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia are the three leading mineral producing provinces, though Alberta and Nova Scotia lead in coal production. Manitoba, once considered solely as an agricultural province, is becoming increasingly important as a mineral producer. Encouraging developments of late in the mining of metallic minerals in Saskatchewan and the Northwest Territories have focussed attention on the mineral possibilities of this vast area.

In 1937 new high production records were established for gold, copper, lead, zinc, nickel, platinum metals, selenium, tellurium, asbestos, sulphur, crude petroleum, and salt.

Canada's rich endowment in water power resources is the outflow of a fresh water area more than two and a half times the combined water and land area of Great Britain. The abundance and wide distribution of these resources and of their development is shown in Table 1. (above). The water power resources included in this tabulation provide for a total commercial installation of about 43,700,000 h.p. (almost five and one-half times the installation at January 1, 1938), seasonal shortages being provided for by water storage, by interconnection with plants operating under different load and water conditions or by fuel auxiliary plants.

Canada's total hydraulic installation of 9,112,751 h.p. is divided in Table 2 below according to the purpose of the various developments. Approximately 98 per cent. of the electricity sold by central electric stations for power purposes is produced by water power and this combined with the water power installations maintained by the manufacturing industries results in more than 80 per cent. of Canada's industrial power equipment being operated hydraulically.

Column 2 includes only hydro-electric stations which develop power for sale.

Column 3 includes only water power ACTUALLY DEVELOPED by pulp and paper companies. In addition to this turbine installation pulp and paper companies have motor equipment for operation by hydro-electricity purchased from the central electric stations totalled in Column 2, aggregating more than 1,106,000 h.p., making a total of more than 1,785,000 h.p. actually developed for the manufacture of pulp and paper. Large amounts of electricity are also purchased for use in electric boilers rated at more than one and three-quarters million horse power.

Column 4 includes only water power actually developed in connection with industries other than the central electric stations and pulp and paper industries. These industries also purchase power from the central electric stations totalled in Column 2.

Column 5 totals all water wheels in hydraulic turbines installed in Canada.

Column 6 shows the population of Canada at June 1, 1937, as estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Column 7 averages the developed water power per 1,000 population.

Employment

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics maintains a monthly record of the employment afforded by employers in eight leading industries—manufacturing, logging, mining, communications, transportation, construction, services and trade. This record constitutes a valuable index to the current business situation, reflecting conditions among a large proportion of the wage-earning population. During 1937, statements were tabulated from an average of 10,200 employers whose staffs, varying from 975,900 at Feb. 1 to 1,197,600 at the beginning of October, averaged 1,085,800 in the twelve months. The index calculated on the 1926 average as 100, averaged 114.1, as compared with 103.7 in 1937. In 1929, when industrial activity was at the maximum in this record, the index averaged 119.0.

A brief analysis of the situation shows considerable improvement in the Maritime Provinces, Quebec, Ontario, and British Columbia, while in the Prairie Provinces the employment index averaged the same in 1937 as in 1936. A generally high level of activity was indicated in most of the industries included in the monthly surveys of employment. The revival in manufacturing was unusually pronounced, the increase between Jan. 1 and Dec. 1 considerably exceeding the average in the experience of the years, 1921-1936. Logging, mining, communications, services and trade afforded decidedly more employment. Construction was also brisker, while transportation showed little general change.

Five Methods of Doing Export Business

On the following pages will be found articles by experienced Canadian exporters who have proved by results obtained that their methods are correct.

These articles do not include all known methods, but they do cover the majority of recognized methods that so far have proved successful in Canada. Many firms operate combinations of these methods, depending on the types of markets to which they are selling. Each method should be considered in the light of the characteristics of one's own business and of the possible proportions to which the export side of it may grow.

The five methods range from the comparatively simple task of handling a highly specialized line by mail and the co-operation of Trade Commissioners to the handling of a very wide range of articles all used in the same trade by means of the establishment of wholesale branches of the Canadian house abroad.

Each method has its dangers and difficulties as well as advantages, and each is specially suited to certain general classes of business or types of distribution in export markets. No matter what method is adopted there is little doubt that a personal investigation of overseas markets by a principal or chief executive of the Canadian firm is the best preliminary in the development of successful export business. The initial costs of an investigation of this type may seem high at the time, but in most cases expenditures of this kind have proved to be a successful investment.

METHOD NO. 1

Development of an Export Trade Through Branches in Other Countries, Owned by the Parent Exporting Manufacturer in Canada

(Suitable for companies with a diversified product, most or all of which can find extensive export markets subjected to world-wide competition.)

The manufacturer who is endeavouring to build up an export trade to provide an increased and permanent outlet for his products and not simply looking for a channel through which to dispose of some surplus stock provided for domestic trade or to take up some plant capacity temporarily available should consider carefully the advisability of doing so through his own branches abroad, provided, of course, that his line is of a nature to warrant this consideration.

In contemplating the organization of a branch in a foreign country a great many conditions require to be taken into consideration. The territory should therefore be carefully surveyed to ascertain not only the present demand for his product but the possibility of increase in this demand for the future and how this increase is to come about. The state of the local industry and the competition therefrom, as well as competition from other sources requires to be looked into; also the possibility of securing a sufficient number of dealers of a satisfactory type to handle the lines; the general financial standing of these dealers and their attitude toward meeting obligations when due. Study should also be made of local preferences and prejudices, as it is surprising the influence these have in some parts of the world. Customs Tariffs and the possibility of revisions thereto; location for branch headquarters at a point where there are ample facilities at reasonable cost for the reception and storage of bulk stocks, as well as convenient and adequate transportation service for distribution, also require to be looked into. These, and a number of other matters which will suggest themselves, should be carefully investigated in order to give the question intelligent consideration and arrive at a decision.

If, after investigation, the manufacturer is satisfied that a sufficient demand for his product exists in a certain country and is also satisfied that conditions generally would warrant consideration being given to the establishing of a branch selling organization there, then the advantages and disadvantages of the branch system will require to be carefully weighed.

Marketing through a branch selling organization presents several advantages:

1.—The entire effort of the selling organization is concentrated on the one line and there are therefore no diverting interests as is frequently the case where a jobbing house handles a large range of goods. The manufacturer's products under the branch system cannot at any time be treated as a side line to be ignored when goods returning a greater margin of profit can be sold. Travellers and salesmen are not tempted to follow the line of least resistance as is possible where they have optional lines to offer to a dealer.

2.—If a line is one requiring service of any kind, the manufacturer can ensure his own and his customers' interests being properly cared for by providing a service staff having a thorough and expert knowledge of his goods, and it is recognized that an efficient service, where required, brings increased trade.

3.—A branch selling organization enables a manufacturer to keep more closely in touch with the requirements of the market and therefore be in a position to meet, or even anticipate, changing demands on the part of the purchasing public.

4.—In operating through a branch selling organization, the manufacturer can plan and carry on an advertising and selling campaign best suited to the sale of his lines and is free to take such action as he may consider necessary to meet any unusual conditions which may arise from time to time without having to depend upon or to consider first the interests of the importing jobber.

5.—From the standpoint of financial risk, instead of having one or two large accounts, the manufacturer will have a number of smaller accounts scattered throughout the country. In the opinion of many, a number of smaller accounts is an advantage as, after all, there is something to be said in favour of not putting the eggs all in one basket.

6.—It is reasonable to expect that the expense involved in the operating of a branch selling organization could be met by the additional margin obtained through selling direct to the dealers instead of to a large importing jobber. Even if the Branch could not do better than break even on its operations, the manufacturer would still have the advantage of his manufacturing profit on a larger volume.

7.—An esprit de corps can be developed which is a valuable asset in any selling organization.

There are, of course, some disadvantages, for instance:

1.—During a seasonal slackness or a period of temporary depression, when the demand for the manufacturer's particular product may drop off, the selling organization is handicapped through not having other lines with which to fill in.

2.—The necessity of carrying stocks which, in dealing with a large importing jobber, would very likely have been sold outright. This carrying of stocks also involves the making of provision against obsolescence.

3.—The handling and following up of numerous smaller accounts.

4.—A somewhat increased overhead at headquarters because of the necessity for executive supervision.

There are no doubt other disadvantages, some more applicable to one line than to another; however, the advantages of operating through a branch selling organization would appear to much more than offset the disadvantages, assuming, of course, that the manufacturer's line is sufficiently large and varied, the demand sufficient, and conditions generally favourable to operating in this way.

Except for the Chief Executive and perhaps one or two key men, an overseas branch should be staffed by men who speak the language of the country and who have an intimate knowledge of the country, its requirements, the people and their customs. The Branch Manager, or Chief Executive, should be one who is thoroughly familiar with the Company's products and policies and one who possesses good sound judgment. Located as he usually is, thousands of miles away from headquarters, he is frequently called upon to deal with important problems requiring prompt attention which cannot be conveniently or adequately discussed with his Head Office by telegraph or even by telephone, which is now available.

Several Canadian companies are already operating through branch houses abroad. No doubt any of them would be willing to assist other manufacturers contemplating operating in the same way by supplying whatever information they may have available.

METHOD NO. 2

Development of Export Trade Through Resident Agents or Representatives Visited at Intervals by Executive of Canadian Exporting Manufacturer.

(An excellent method that has worked out successfully in many lines as it provides for gradual growth and expansion, coupled with establishment of close personal relations with representatives and informing travel by export executive and an interchange of visits to the plant by representatives. This should be read in close conjunction with Method No. 3, with which it is closely allied.)

From a sales standpoint there are many advantages in having a resident agent, particularly if it is possible to have him visit the plant, get thoroughly acquainted with the product by closely following up through all stages of manufacture, meet the personnel of the Company, familiarize himself with the method of packing and general handling of export shipments.

A few of these advantages are as follows:

(1) A resident agent can approach customers with more confidence in the product as he is able to converse freely in the language of the country. From personal experience in the Far East and Continent of Europe, have found in many cases difficulty in getting anywhere on account of not being able to speak the language.

(2) A resident agent can keep principals posted on competitive lines and demands for necessary improvements to meet market conditions.

(3) Is in the position to revise and add to mailing lists of already established and prospective customers.

(4) Being in close touch with the financial standing of customers is able to take action on principal's behalf in the event of collection difficulties. In this connection might mention we give our resident agents authority to act on our behalf. If draft is refused, instead of costly cables and delays, it is immediately referred to the resident agent for further instructions.

(5) Is able to transfer shipments in event of disputes. In one or two cases, after shipment had left Canada, it was necessary to hold up on account of credit, which was taken care of by cable and turned over to resident agent for disposal elsewhere.

(6) Is in the position to investigate orders or enquiries which may be received by principals direct.

The advantages of visiting resident agents, as the writer sees them, are many; preferably the President, Vice-President, General Manager, or Sales Manager, as in most cases it is best to make a decision on the spot so to speak. Naturally it is better that this executive should be in close touch with the Export Department.

Visits of this kind bring the line up to date, establish confidence between agents and principals, in addition to getting first hand information as to the class of house from which orders are being received.

Might I repeat again it is very desirable if possible, to have the agent visit the factory. The executive can very often obtain information regarding the sale of competitive lines which the agent does not always seem able to obtain. Manufacturing information can very often be picked up. A general size-up of the agent's ability and his connections can be intelligently made. How often have we sized up a man by correspondence and on making his acquaintance found a totally different person than we had pictured.

In some cases the resident agent is the most economical way of conducting export business, providing, of course, you have a real live agent. There is not any definite rule that I know of to select agents or representatives. I recall one time in Australia, of interviewing a resident agent who was not interested, but later on was approached by the same firm's branch in another city, by one of their Directors who saw possibilities in our line. The firm in question turned out to be live representatives.

There seems to be some element of luck in selecting agents or representatives. In order to avoid liability it might be better to classify as resident representatives not resident agents.

METHOD NO. 3

Development of Export Trade Through Resident Agents Abroad With No Personal Visits by a Representative of the Canadian Exporting Manufacturer.

(A very large number of Canadian manufacturers use this method, gradually moving towards Method No. 2, which supplements and strengthens it.)

The policy of appointing a resident Agent abroad without any personal supervision from a representative is one which is attended with many risks and much dissatisfaction unless preceded beforehand by a very careful investigation into.

- (1) The standing of the individual or Company in the business community.
- (2) His or their financial responsibility.
- (3) Integrity.
- (4) Business capabilities.
- (5) Number and kind of other lines carried.

Too often the manufacturer looking for export business will accept the first application received for an agency arrangement, without making the ordinary investigations which would be made upon receipt of a similar application on the domestic market. Even at the present time applications are constantly being received by exporters from many bright and well-intentioned people who, after seeing or hearing of a new line, think they can sell it against old and established importing agencies who have probably controlled their market on this line for a great many years and who if approached by some obscure individual with a competitive line would give it scant consideration. It is, therefore, vitally necessary that the business standing of an individual or company should be known, in order for your product to receive fair and impartial consideration.

This will also protect the intending exporter from the unscrupulous type of individual who sends in his application under an assumed company name, on very elaborately got up business note paper, with the intention of obtaining a good set of samples for nothing.

What emphasis should be placed on financial responsibility will depend entirely on whether the agent is going to act on a purely commission basis, merely soliciting orders and passing them on to the manufacturer for shipping and financing, or to buy direct himself and in turn resell to the trade.

The integrity of an agent should be unquestionable, because any suspicion of sharp practices would immediately reflect on the company appointing the agent, and result in a definite restriction and loss of trade.

The business capability of the proposed agent should also be scrutinized; there should be a reputation for being thoroughly acquainted with all lines carried, ability to promote sales, judicious in the selection of customers and the granting of credit risks. Much profitable export business can easily be turned into serious and heavy losses unless the latter requirement is carefully followed.

Then it is very essential to know the number and kind of other lines carried, to ascertain if they are in any way complementary or competitive. It may be that the applicant is already carrying too many lines and it has been found in practice that there is a tendency to push only those lines easy to sell, or giving the greatest remuneration. Even if the agent is thoroughly reliable, it is difficult to become thoroughly acquainted with every item carried, with the result that the added new lines may suffer in comparison with the older ones. Often an agent will undertake to carry a competitive line just to prevent some other agent more favourably placed from obtaining it, sending in just sufficient orders to create the impression that an effort is being made to place the line on the market, but at the same time actually throttling its development.

There is no difficulty in obtaining resident agents overseas as an advertisement in any export Journal will bring a host of applicants, the majority of whom will guarantee to handle the line offered in the most efficient manner. The problem to solve is to be able to pick out from the replies received the one who will handle your line most successfully.

A much safer way is to entrust your agent problem to the Canadian Trade Commissioners, seeking their advice after giving them full information about your product.

It is not to be suggested that the right person or company will always be selected and in order to guard against errors of judgment and to protect them as far as possible, it would be advisable to limit the contract of any new agent appointed to one or two years, during which time you will have ample opportunity to check up and study the results obtained. If not satisfactory, the contract can then be broken off at the end of the stipulated period.

From the above it is very obvious that only the best type of individual or company should be chosen as your representative and the success or failure to open up an export market will depend very materially upon this.

The decision to appoint an individual or a company will depend to a great extent on the nature of the commodity to be exported, the distribution desired, and the extent of the market. In some countries it may be advisable to confine your agency to a large company who are in touch with all wholesale outlets, and while this may restrict the distribution, it has this compensation that credit risk is practically reduced to a minimum, and in some cases goods are paid for immediately upon receipt at the usual cash terms. Should it be the policy of the exporter to place his goods through as many outlets as possible, then the individual agent provides the best possible medium because he buys nothing for himself but simply solicits orders for the manufacturer and the greatest advantage lies in the ability of such a man to get business for his principals, from all possible buyers in his field. Another added advantage is that being constantly on the ground, he is able to take immediate advantage of every opportunity the moment it arises, and to adjust troubles and complaints that are almost certain to arise in the conduct of any business, whether it is foreign or domestic. Furthermore, there is bound to arise the question of extended and disputed drafts and he can safeguard payments and collections for his principals.

The agent's duties are not confined only to the securing of orders and some of his time will have to be spent in adjusting difficulties as they arise, also explaining away injudicious letters from the home office, for oftentimes a good connection is lost through a lack of tact and courtesy on the part of the sender.

The chief disadvantage in appointing an agent without personal supervision lies in the almost impossibility of making him or them acquainted with changes in business policy by means of a letter, no matter how well constructed it may be. It is then that close personal contact can explain away in a few minutes any misgivings held, what otherwise may take several letters spread over a considerable period. When export business is being operated at little or no profit it is difficult to explain by letter why an advertising allowance cannot be made or unreasonable claims accepted.

In summing up, it can safely be said that satisfactory business can be obtained by this method, although of course it will always lack that undefinable something which always comes with personal contact.

METHOD NO. 4

The Development of Export Trade Through Export Merchants, Export Buying Houses or Indent Houses.

(This method or really two methods in one, with many similar characteristics, offers a wide field for certain varieties of products but if used solely should be chosen with the utmost discretion. The Indent House Method can fit in by consent with Methods two and three and can be attempted simultaneously.)

Co-operation with reliable indent houses in suitable cases provides a means of training members of manufacturers' staffs in export technique and provides specialized selling and personal contacts in export markets while retaining the identity of manufacturers goods through to the customer.

In the "Export Merchants" discussion prospective exporters would do well to ponder seriously over the disadvantages mentioned.)

There are many manufacturers in Great Britain who have been able to secure a splendid volume of business overseas without ever having had even an export department of their own. They have secured this business through London houses operating as Export Merchants or through London Indent firms.

EXPORT MERCHANTS operate really as Export Wholesale Houses. They make an arrangement with a Manufacturer by which they will have the control of anything he makes that may be shipped overseas. If the Manufacturer receives an enquiry from abroad, he refers it to this Export Merchant. The Merchant buys for cash from the Manufacturer and turns around and quotes the merchandise to firms overseas at a price that will give him a profit. He takes all the credit responsibility and even arranges for proper distribution in any market where there would seem to be a demand for this particular product. He has Representatives who travel to different countries in the world and in this way keeps in touch with his connections abroad.

There are many advantages to the Manufacturer from handling his export business in this manner:

1. It costs him nothing to sell his goods. He may at times find it necessary to supply something in the way of samples but this is likely to be a small matter and if it really amounts to something, he can usually arrange to supply the samples at regular prices, less a sample discount.

2. He sells for cash and has no credit risk. Manufacturers are often concerned and rightly so, about the credit standing of firms overseas who may wish to buy their goods. Selling to the Export Merchant, he gets his money even sooner than for domestic sales.

3. He avoids the necessity of having an export department in his business. The Export Merchant looks after all details of shipping, insurance and invoicing and all the Manufacturer has to do is to ship his goods to Seaboard as directed and submit ordinary domestic invoices. The overseas correspondence is conducted by the Export Merchant, who is competent to look after this even if it be in a foreign language.

4. He increases the volume of business passing through his plant and in this way lowers his unit cost of production. This enables him to compete more successfully in his own market.

The disadvantages of this method are not great. There are one or two features that should be considered:

1. He will probably not know his customers overseas and if for any reason, the Export Merchant breaks his connection, he may lose his overseas business. However, the Export Merchant is not likely to do this so long as he gets good treatment from the Manufacturer. It costs money to develop a market and no one wishes to have to do it with a new product if he already has one established.

2. He will need to make sure that the Export Merchant has a distinct possibility to get business for it has been known to happen that representation of a line has been gotten to keep it off the market. For that reason, it should only be given for an initial period of not too long so that if business does not result, he can take other means to get it.

INDENT FIRMS are really Buying Houses or Purchasing Houses in one country for firms located in other countries overseas. Many overseas firms prefer to have all their business attended to by their own buying offices located in centres of countries where manufacturing industries are plentiful. Such firms as these are often a good means of getting manufactured goods introduced to their overseas clients.

1. They usually buy for first class firms only.

2. They pay cash for all purchases.

3. They attend to all details of shipping, insurance, invoicing and correspondence.

On the other hand:

1. They take no responsibility for sales at all but simply place orders on definite instructions received from their clients.

2. They buy only for their own clients and it may be possible there are other firms in overseas countries who might be interested in the goods. The indent houses will not offer the goods for sale to other than their own clients. Their distribution therefore is limited unless a Manufacturer is dealing with a number of Indent Houses operating in the same overseas markets.

The number of Export Merchants and Indent Firms in Canada has been limited, due probably to the fact that it is only comparatively recently that Canadian Manufactured goods have been shipped in volume and variety to overseas markets. It is only reasonable to expect that their numbers will increase and in this way, there will be offered to Canadian Manufacturers a method of securing export business that is sound, economical and safe.

METHOD NO. 5

Development of Export Trade Direct by Mail.

(This method though useful for highly specialized products marketed to well-rated and substantial customers is fraught with many dangers unless subjected to the closest analysis. It is true it grows gradually to the point of becoming exactly like Method No. 3, but the initial stages of attempting to do business direct by mail, without previous intense and discriminating selection of risks, are full of pitfalls and form a pretext for the propagation of many useless schemes.)

Many Canadian industries, organized primarily to supply their domestic market, do not have the large organization nor the facilities necessary to maintain branches or even direct agents handling only their products in foreign markets.

In these days of specialization, the products of many plants must sometimes be sold in the export markets by commission agents handling kindred lines in order to spread the selling expense over sufficient volume to make export sales profitable. In fact, modern practice has resulted in many plants making only one particular line of goods often of interest only to some one trade or profession. Often this means a field so restricted it does not pay the producer to seek export business through ordinary channels. However, such specialized lines usually have the advantage of being of special interest and usefulness to certain definitely known trades or professions. Lists of prospects for such lines can be obtained and trade solicited in foreign, almost as easily as in the domestic market. It is possible in this way to eliminate expensive selling costs and create a demand for such goods as will permit some responsible agent to stock or supply them profitably.

Of course, wherever this is practical, a selling agent right on the ground is always much better and more satisfactory. A good agent can create connections not obtainable by mail and can always learn why prospects are not interested or correct any misunderstanding which no amount of correspondence might bring out. It is no different in foreign markets than at home. Every purchaser takes the easiest way and will usually pay more to be relieved of all details of which he knows little or nothing.

The local agent has special advantages over direct-by-mail solicitation in countries using other than the English language. A good agent will speak fluently the one or more languages used and can usually translate special instructions into English for the manufacturer, thus overcoming many chances of misinterpretation.

Even if carefully written and checked over, transcriptions from English to other languages are sometimes misleading. Often the correct version does not convey the idea or thought as well as if the letter were written in the dialect peculiar to the country in which the prospect resides.

Particularly in financial matters, the agent can secure reports, approach only good accounts and help with collections when necessary.

But in spite of all these drawbacks it is possible to do a good and profitable export business direct by mail with lines which could in no other way be exported to advantage. Goods of exceptional interest and usefulness to some definitely known trade or profession—possibly not ordinarily obtainable except on special order or which must be delivered in fresh condition. Especially such goods as can be sent by Parcel Post.

The first step is to secure an agent to handle deliveries and lists of interested users. This can usually be done with the aid of the Canadian Trade Commissioner in the market to be tried.

The Commissioner should be given full particulars of the product—samples where possible—and suggestions as to the class of trade likely to be interested. He will suggest an agent and the best source for obtaining lists of prospects. Usually he can secure good lists for the exporter. As an official Canadian representative, the Trade Commissioner often has access to records and information not ordinarily obtainable. In fact, he can usually give better advice and suggestions about the market he represents than could be obtained by months of direct investigation. It is his duty to assist in the sale of any Canadian product in his market. No better corps of expert salesmen could be had at any price than is available to every Canadian exporter.

Having arranged for handling deliveries and secured a list of prospects, a carefully prepared campaign for that particular market should be worked out. Letters should always be in the language of that market. When other than English, such letters should be very carefully translated. If time permits, it is always best to submit the suggested series of letters to the Trade Commissioner for O.K. Translations are often much clearer and get better results if in the particular style or dialect in use in the prospect's country.

Full and complete description—good illustrations, showing the goods and their uses—are essential to best results. Even if it does not pay to translate catalogues or circulars, sufficient explanation should be given in the letters to make their advantages and uses clear to the prospect.

Arrangements with the agent should be made to either stock or obtain goods promptly a demand has been created so as not to lose the benefit of direct solicitation. With the help of the Trade Commissioner, a good agent should be arranged for who will supply the demand. With reasonable prospects the agent can be induced to purchase some stock or if sent on consignment to guarantee payment as the goods are sold. Once the agent is convinced there is a profitable demand he will undertake selling on his own account.

There is no doubt that many Canadian products could be exported in this way if reasonable time and care were given all the necessary details. Export markets are particularly desirable to most Canadian manufacturers to permit increased volume production—not always possible in a comparatively restricted home market. Even if such exports are sold close to actual costs, they are a great advantage in absorbing overhead costs and creating steady employment of sometimes highly trained staffs.

One thing should be kept in mind always—for the good of all Canadian exporters. Once foreign trade has been solicited, be prepared to make prompt deliveries of thoroughly dependable goods offering good value. A manufacturer who solicits foreign business only while his trade is slack in Canada and fails to give good service on foreign business during rush times in domestic trade is creating a very bad opinion in foreign markets, not only of his own concern but on all his fellow exporters as well.

Let every Canadian exporter maintain the good reputation created by our Trade Commissioners and by our most successful exporters by good service, reliable goods and fair dealing.

Financing Export Trade

To any manufacturer who realizes the difficulties of producing an article which fills the requirements of foreign markets, and of securing satisfactory customers for that article against the competition of the other manufacturing countries of the world, the importance given to the subsequent details of the business may seem, at times, a little exaggerated. It is undoubtedly true, however, that close attention to those details of export business which follow the consummation of a sale, are of the greatest importance. The foreign customer not only wants standard quality goods at a competitive price, but also wants those goods delivered to him within contract time, packed in a proper way and accompanied by all the necessary documents properly made out to the last detail; and if the customer does not get what he wants along these lines, he will take his business elsewhere. Documents which do not arrive as soon as the goods, or a missing consular vise or consular invoice, will cause delays and perhaps fines. A description of the goods which may appear entirely reasonable at this end, may not be at all what is required to secure the proper tariff interpretation in the consignee's country. Such incidents are so vexatious to importers that no firm can expect to secure or retain customers unless close attention is paid to the requirements of their market along these lines. For a firm whose personnel does not know these requirements by experience, it is not always a simple matter to obtain the necessary information. In the present article, an endeavor is made to indicate the assistance which banks can render in this connection, as well as banking requirements in relation to the handling and financing of foreign shipments.

Extension of Credit by Exporters

Credit is an element in most business transactions. It can be understood that it is even more necessary in foreign than in domestic trade, since more time is usually taken up by the movement of goods between seller and buyer when these two are located in different countries, and Custom House delays are often a factor. The seller who receives a request for the extension of credit in connection with a sale has three things to consider:—(1) The financial standing of his customer; (2) the custom of the foreign market in regard to credit terms on the particular commodity being dealt in and (3) his own ability to finance the business.

The seller's bank can obtain for him a report on the prospective customer's resources and the custom of the market in regard to extension of credit. It should be pointed out here, however, that to obtain complete information by cable is usually a very expensive process, so that every effort should be made to anticipate the need for it before the matter becomes urgent. Again, the quality of the information varies. In countries where Canadian bank branches are located, it is often more complete than when received from correspondents. Sometimes, however, accurate detailed information is impossible to obtain. The banker will always do his best to advise the customer whether, in his opinion, the credit risk is reasonable, but obviously there are cases hard to decide, where the seller's judgment must be the deciding factor. Referring now to the third point mentioned above, the ability of the seller to finance the business, it is obvious that he does not want to tie up his capital in goods in transit, or in 90 days' paper awaiting payment, if he can avoid doing so. He may not be able to avoid doing it in all cases, and a certain proportion of exporters' drafts, therefore, go forward on a collection basis. For the rest, all good exporting houses have arrangements with their banks, whereby they can discount sight or time drafts on good names abroad. The willingness of the bank to enter into such an arrangement naturally depends on the financial standing of their customer, and the amount of credit involved.

Bank Discounts

The negotiation of clean bills is tantamount to making an unsecured loan to the drawers, with the added security of the drawee's name after acceptance.

In discounting both documentary and clean bills, the bank's main security, in the first instance, lies in the responsibility of the drawer. In the case of any trouble with the drawee, the bank is in a weak position unless its power of recourse to the maker is reasonably certain to be productive of satisfactory results. Drawers, therefore, must have a capital adequate to bear the loss which may easily arise from an unfortunate export transaction. The extra risk contained in export business does not lie in the greater lack of probity of foreign houses, but in the room which exists for errors and misunderstandings on account of the distances separating buyer and seller, and the difficulty and expense of conducting a long distance legal action. Misunderstandings are specially liable to arise in the case of transactions effected by correspondence. Litigation is often a lengthy and expensive process; in many cases the results are not worth the outlay.

The risk which underlies the discounting of documentary foreign drafts is not always clearly understood and it is not an uncommon thing for a firm which has been unable to finance an export shipment to criticize its bankers for their refusal to discount drafts covering the merchandise. This firm has probably been told, quite truly, that exporting involves the granting of credit. It now gets a profitable and relatively large order from a foreign house on whom good reports have been received. The terms may be sight, thirty or sixty days—quite moderate credit—yet the bank may be unwilling to discount the seller's documentary drafts. The Canadian firm cannot understand the refusal since, in its opinion, the bank is fully covered by the merchandise until acceptance, and, in the case of sight drafts, until payment. The answer is this: that this security of merchandise is often more apparent than real: that many causes for refusal of delivery may crop up, and the goods may then be a thousand miles from a good market, and unsaleable except at a sacrifice. The principal backing is then the capital of the drawer. Where this warrants the extension of the credit involved, the draft will be discounted. Firms of the class that we have referred to were probably of moderate capital, though of good standing. Their domestic business used up their resources to the hilt; and an unsuccessful excursion into the export field for other than a moderate amount might have brought them into a bad position and left a slow loan on the hands of the bank which thought it was discounting a self-liquidating bill.

Currency of Bills

The currency in which a draft is drawn depends on the arrangements made by seller and buyer at the time the sale is effected; and these arrangements will vary according to the country in which the one and the other are located. The object of the drawer of a draft is to secure a certain and definite return from it. He can best do this by drawing in terms of his own money, thus shifting the risk of loss from exchange fluctuations on to the shoulders of the drawee; or, if the drawer's currency is not quoted and dealt in to any great extent in the country of the drawee, the former can make his drafts payable in some stable and well-known currency. Sterling was, par excellence, the money of international trade prior to the war, since it was quoted and dealt in all the world over, and a sterling remittance always could be turned into gold on the London market.

At one time Canadian exporters made great use of United States dollars as a basis for submitting prices to foreign buyers, and as the currency in which their drafts were made payable. The practice is not so much in vogue at the present time. There is only one sound reason for dealing in this way, viz., the fact that in some countries quotations for Canadian dollars are not received as frequently as those for United States exchange. At such points the importer who goes to the bank to take up a draft is liable to get a more accurate and favourable rate if the draft is payable in United States dollars than if settlement is called for in Canadian dollars. The fact that Canadian quotations are not received as frequently as United States quotations, cannot always be avoided. Unless Canada is regularly doing a good volume of business with the country concerned, it does not pay the banks at that point to go to the expense of receiving frequent exchange quotations by cable.

It is not always possible to draw in the currency of the seller's country, since some importers prefer to make payment in their own money. If this money is not exchangeable for gold, and is subject to violent fluctuations in its exchange relations with the currencies of other countries, an importer will find it difficult to make purchases on this basis. If, however, the money of his country is moderately stable, competition may tend to force exporters to draw as the importer desires.

Before the war, drafts on Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the British colonies using sterling currency were drawn in sterling, and the same is largely true today, although for exports to these points from the United States, dollars may be used, or dollar Letters of Credit established. Drafts on the countries of South and Central America are rarely, if ever, phrased in terms of the local currency of these countries, and sterling and dollar drafts predominate. The same is true as regards the Orient.

Drafts on the main European countries were in many cases drawn in francs, marks, crowns, pesetas or whatever the currency might be; today this is not so, except insofar as some of the countries which have returned to the gold standard are concerned. Thus, a substantial international business is done in Dutch guilders, and Swiss francs and Swedish crowns are also used. So far, it is not usual for drafts on Germany to be phrased in terms of the new German mark. In all cases, however, our remarks on the wide use of sterling and dollars are more or less applicable.

Exchange Clauses

The fact that a bill is not payable in the currency of the drawee's country at once gives rise to the question of how the conversion rate between the two currencies shall be established. If this were considered a matter for arrangement between the collecting bank and the drawee, it is not difficult to imagine the complications which might arise. Would a bill for $1,000 United States currency drawn on a firm in Buenos Aires, Argentina, be settled for by the drawee paying to the bank an amount of local paper currency which, at par, would equal $1,000 U.S. or would the drawee perhaps consider settlement made by the tender of a sight draft on New York for the face amount of the bill—a settlement which would involve a loss to the drawer, if he had expected to be paid by cable? All these and other possible points of issue, are settled by the addition of a clause to the draft indicating the basis on which settlement shall be effected. The usual clauses for dollar and sterling drafts on foreign countries read respectively as follows:—

Dollar Drafts on Foreign Countries

Payable at the bank's selling rate on day of payment for sight drafts on (Canadian dollars—Montreal, U.S. dollars—New York).

Sterling Drafts on Foreign Countries

Payable at the bank's selling rate on day of payment for sight drafts on London.

Drafts drawn at ninety days' sight on South American points are not uncommon. In the case of such drafts, the drawer will have to realize that he is to lose interest, not only during the transit period of the draft and return remittance, but also during the time occupied by the draft in arriving at maturity. Thus he will have to include in his quotation interest at the prevailing rate made up as follows:—

Transit to and from Argentina and delays.....	45 days
Elapsed time to maturity date of draft	90 days
	135 days

Some drawees are slow about accepting drafts. Therefore, only experience can show exactly what loss of time should be allowed for in such transactions.

It is advisable to include bank commission and other charges in the face amount, if the drawer expects to recover the amount of his invoice in full without deduction.

There are special customs in connection with the collection or negotiation through London of bills drawn on Australia, New Zealand, Africa and the Orient; the details are somewhat too long to be included in an article of this nature, but they may be found in the booklet "Financing Foreign Trade", published by the Royal Bank of Canada.

Instructions to Banks

Exporters, when placing bills with a bank, either for discount or for collection, should be careful to give the bank full instructions in regard to the handling of the drafts in question. Instructions as to whether documents should be surrendered against payment or against acceptance, are so obvious that it is only by some clerical error that they are ever omitted, but there are numerous other points which are frequently not covered when bills are placed with a bank:—the omission sometimes leads to unnecessary trouble and expense. Example of what such instructions may consist of is given below:

Protest for Non-Payment
Non-Acceptance

Permit Drawee to inspect merchandise before accepting draft.

Hold for arrival of goods.

Payable at collecting bank's selling rate for Sight Drafts on.....on date of payment. Cables

Payable at selling rate for cheques on.....Remit proceeds by cable

Letters of Credit

A considerable volume of international business is financed by means of bankers' credits. When exporters can manage to have customers open such credits, this is obviously a very desirable way of doing business, because risk of loss and any trouble regarding financing are eliminated. While buyers have to pay the bank at their end a moderate commission for this facility, the extra expense is often compensated for by the more favorable quotations they can secure from sellers if payment is effected in this manner.

When Canadian exporting firms have credits opened in their favour, it will pay them to discuss with their bankers the sense and terms of these documents, if they are in any doubt regarding the provisions embodied therein, or the protection afforded. For example, the credit may be issued by a foreign bank, with whose standing they are not familiar. The Canadian bank can advise them whether the foreign bank in question is entirely responsible. Again, the credit may have a revocable provision which needs to be carefully considered. It is not possible to discuss here the varied aspects of this class of banking document, but it may be said that great care has to be exercised by an exporter to live up meticulously to all the requirements of a credit. Some of these may seem to him absurd and unnecessary, but he must remember that the bank at this end has no authority to vary the instructions in any way, shape or form. If they require alteration, the matter should be taken up as soon as advice of the credit is received, instead of waiting until the shipment has been loaded on board steamer and the documents brought to the bank.

No reference has been made in this article to shipping documents, although these are important from a banking point of view when drafts are received from clients, either for collection, or for discount or under terms of Letters of Credit. In the first case, the bank needs proper documents in order to render the client good service; in the second and third cases, it needs them for its own protection. This section of the subject is dealt with in the Royal Bank of Canada booklet which has previously been referred to, viz., "Financing Foreign Trade."

How the Canadian Manufacturers' Association Can Assist Members in their Export Activities

The Constitution of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association which was organized in 1871 and incorporated by Act of Parliament in 1902 provides that "The Objects of this Association shall be to promote Canadian industries and to further the interests of Canadian manufacturers and exporters, and to render such services and assistance to the members of the Association and to manufacturers and exporters generally, as the Association may deem advisable from time to time."

The assistance which the Canadian Manufacturers' Association gives to exporters might be classified under two headings: specific and general.

The Association is in a position to render the following direct assistance.

- 1—Empire and Foreign Tariffs:—The Tariff Department keeps up-to-date and accurate information respecting customs tariffs, customs and consular regulations and invoicing requirements of all countries. Particular study is given to tariff preferences within the British Empire, forms of certificate of origin, and to the percentage of Canadian content required in order to qualify for such preferences. The Tariff Department also advises members respecting the export drawback allowed by the Canadian Government.
 - 2—Commercial Reports on Overseas Firms: The Association furnishes free of charge, to members of the Association commercial reports on overseas firms with whom they may contemplate doing business.
 - 3—Transportation and Ocean Rates: The Transportation Dept. of the Association supplies information on rail and ocean rates, steamship services, routing, shipping documents, parcel post, trade terms and definitions.
 - 4—Enquiries from Foreign Countries: As the organization has up-to-date information in regard to Canadian manufacturers, enquiries which are received from abroad for Canadian products are placed before firms likely to be interested.
 - 5—Each year a large number of responsible buyers and agents from abroad visit the offices of the Association, and are put in touch with Canadian manufacturers.
 - 6—The Association co-operates very closely with the Commercial Intelligence Service of the Department of Trade and Commerce. It notifies members when Trade Commissioners are visiting Canada, arrange appointments, and advise members of the assistance which this service provides.
 - 7—Translation Service: A translation service is at the disposal of all members of the Association. Letters in practically all languages are translated and facilities provided for translating English letters into foreign languages.
 - 8—General Information: Information is also given in regard to coding and deciphering cables; names of consuls throughout Canada; figuring C.I.F. prices; statistics of exports; electric currents in various countries; advice on export procedure and particulars of foreign currencies.
- Under general, or indirect aids we might mention:
- a—Keeping members constantly advised of changes and developments in the regulations and laws of overseas countries which might affect their interests.
 - b—Co-operation with the Canadian Government Exhibition Commission in the organization and administration of exhibitions abroad where Canadian products are exhibited. During the last few years, the Association has assisted in the organization of the New Zealand and South Seas International Exhibition at Dunedin; the British Empire Exhibitions at Wembley; the British Empire Trade Fair at Buenos Aires, and the Canadian Section of the British Industries Fair which is held each year at Olympia and Birmingham.
 - c—Assistance in the organizing of properly sponsored trade tours to various markets.
 - d—The publication of books and pamphlets relating to export methods and procedure and general publicity in regard to the development of Canadian export trade.
 - e—Administration of Export Clubs and arranging of the Export Courses.
 - f—Publication of the Canadian Trade Index which gives a classified and alphabetical list of the manufacturers in Canada and is distributed throughout 75 countries. This book is used as a basis of information by importers, agents and merchandising concerns abroad and is available in the offices of public libraries, shipping companies, banks, industrial organizations and Chambers of Commerce in overseas countries. The Index contains a special export section giving data in regard to methods of conducting export trade, foreign financing and an analysis of Canadian trade.

Definitions of Technical Abbreviations used in Foreign Trade and Exchange Transactions.

The following list includes some of the principal abbreviations used in ocean shipping, transportation, marine insurance, and foreign exchange, as well as a number referring to standards, gauges, threads, dimensions, electrical and engineering terms. It was compiled with the assistance of our members, marine insurance companies, banks and departments of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. It is hoped it will be useful both to Canadian exporters and importers of Canadian products abroad.

SERVICES of the COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE DEPARTMENT Canadian Manufacturers' Association Inc.

This Department is a clearing house for commercial, trade and statistical information. It compiles and distributes Canadian Trade Index which gives alphabetical and classified lists of manufacturers in Canada and is distributed yearly to seventy-five countries. The Department co-operates with the Department of Trade and Commerce in the organization and administration of overseas exhibitions. It also co-operates very closely with the Commercial Intelligence Service and the Department of Trade and Commerce in regard to all activities which will extend Canadian trade.

Members are kept advised by the Department of changes and developments in the regulations and laws of overseas countries which might affect their interests and trade proposals of various kinds are placed before the Commercial Intelligence Committee for consideration.

Explanation of List

THE list beginning on the opposite page comprises the names and addresses, alphabetically arranged, of all firms appearing in the classified section of the Canadian Trade Index. In this list we have tried to give the users of the book some information that will be useful in getting into quick touch with the makers of any desired article.

No street addresses are given in Part III (the classified article section). These are recorded where necessary to complete the address in Part II (the alphabetical list).

We have not attempted to give, in this list, any full account of the products. These will all be found under separate headings in the classified section on pages 283 and following. Only where the firm or company name does not indicate the line of goods manufactured have we mentioned some of the articles produced.

The address given is that of the main place of business in Canada, usually the head office, although it may be both factory and office address. The addresses given later, under "Factories," are those of branch factories. Where branch offices in Canada are mentioned stock is generally carried at these points.

For. Rep. or simply Rep. means foreign or other representative for export sales purposes.

The Cable addresses and codes will be found useful in initiating and transacting export business.

Guide to Classified Index

THE method of indexing the material on the succeeding pages is that by which the most important word in headings is generally placed first. The arrangement then proceeds in the proper alphabetical order. In the majority of cases it will be found that the noun or main name comes first, i.e.—Furniture, bedroom; Hardware, builders'; Leather, boot and shoe upper, etc. This allows the grouping of all similar articles close together. In other cases, where the inversion seems unnatural, the headings have been listed as they run—air appliances; fire escapes, etc. If any difficulty is experienced in locating desired headings or articles, users of the book should try both forms of listing. This will enable the heading to be found if it appears in the book at all.

In all cases we have endeavored to use the names most commonly known. It is possible that we have listed some articles and materials under names that differ from those that our subscribers use. Synonyms will therefore be useful to bear in mind.

Cross references have been supplied where two or more names are commonly used to describe the same article.

Street addresses of the firms listed in the classified section are provided where necessary in the alphabetical list of names (on blue sheets) immediately preceding the Classified Section (Part III, pages 283 to 651).

Attention is also called to the French Index of articles, which is placed immediately after the Produce Section (Part IV, pages 653 to 659). In a limited edition a Spanish Index also appears following the French Index.

Firms before whose name an asterisk appears are engaged or seriously interested in Export Trade.

Corrections and revisions of these lists are made periodically by the Commercial Intelligence Department of the Canadian Manufacturers Association.

We shall be glad to have the opportunity of giving additional information to any manufacturer or user of the Canadian Trade Index. No charge is made for this service.
